POOR DAVID CHRISTIE.

Identification of the Body of the Man Found Sunday—His Daughter Had Missed Her Father.

At last the remains of the man found dead in Tewksbury have been identified.

The body is that of David Christie and was recognized by his daughter, Mrs. Ezra Bowden, residing on Andrews street, with whom he formerly lived.

He left home Jan. 3 to go to Boston to look for work and a letter was received from him two days after. Since that time nothing has been heard from him and it was presumed he had found employment.

It is now though that he was unsuccessful in his search and being without money started to walk home, became exhausted by the roadside and had lain there until found.

Deceased was 54 years of age and leaves a wife in Ottawa. For five years he led the singing in Rev. Dr. Court's church which accounts for the pitch pipe found in his pocket. He was a man of good character and did not use liquor.

The remains will be interred this afternoon.

In an interview, Mrs. Bowden says: "I identified the body by the clothing and the musician's pitch pipe found in his pockets. The arctics have the patches put on by my father before he left home. My father was a designer on Paisley shawls until they went out of fashion. He was a native of Scotland, and 54 years old. He was for five years leader of the choir in the First Presbyterian church. He had been in poor health and only worked occasionally.

"When he left our house, Jan. 3 last, he did not say where he was going, but we had a letter from him dated Boston, Jan. 5. We thought he had gone to visit some relatives, but when he did not return we wrote them, but did not find any trace of him. He must have attempted to walk to Lowell when he was prostrated by the storm.

"My mother is dead, and there are no other children. I did not think it was my father when I first read in the newspapers of the body being found. I brought with me a sample of the cloth from which his clothing had been made."

THIEVES WERE LUCKY

A Providence despatch says:

The offices of Drs. J. F. Lennon and W. P. Church, at 357 Westminster street, were broken into last night, and about $90 worth of gold, silver and dentists' tools were stolen.

Dr. Lennon reports his loss at $20 and Dr. Church $40. From the condition that the doors were found in this morning the thieves must have secreted themselves in the building before it was closed for the night and then left by a window in the rear.

The block in which the building is located is bounded by Snow and Chapel streets, Westminster lane and Westminster street, and is at the mercy of marauders, as with little or no trouble they can get upon the roof of the lower buildings and wander from roof to roof.

Two men were seen on the roof yesterday, but as there are many men who go upon the building each day to look after the many wires little or no attention was paid to them.

Drs. Church and Lennon are confident that the work was done by some one acquainted with the trade for only the best of goods and tools were taken.

Dr. Lennon is a son of Mr. John Lennon of this city.

LOWELL SCHOOLS

Are They Abreast of the Times?

Grammar Masters Severely Criticize the Present Schedule.

And Several Say Text Books Are Out of Date and Curriculum Not Practical

SCHOOL COMMITTEE REPORT FOR '94 SUGGESTS SEVERAL IMPROVEMENTS.

Thoroughness in Teaching Great Essentials the Keynote—Thoughts For Parents to Consider.

The keynote of the school committee's report for 1894 is "thoroughness, thoroughness, thoroughness" in the great essentials, and the teachers of the city can gain something by reading that report carefully.

The second feature is a demand for greater attention to the English branches. In this respect the report will at once commend itself to every parent having a child in the public schools. The report shows the need of a radical change in the curriculum of our grammar schools. No grammar master in the city speaks well of the curriculum and they have the best opportunity of knowing its defects. For many years parents have complained of the inadequacy of this course of study claiming that it is not as practical as it should be. The report has statements from grammar masters pointing out defects in the course of study; one of these on page 88 says tersely and pointedly: "The whole grammar school course needs co-ordination and unification so that the work of the various grades will fit in as parts of a perfect whole. We spend over a third of our entire time upon mathematics while in common with the schools of many cities our weak points are in reading and in writing English."

Too much time is frittered away on non-essential studies in the schools at the expense of neglecting the three R's which go to make up the foundation of a practical education.

Strong Points of the Report.

The new report is the largest volume yet brought out by the board. Manual training forms an important chapter with illustrations of the present school. The statistical portions are similar to those of previous years only of greater extent as the school department grew surprisingly last year. An abstract of the report is here appended. Introductory, the report tells of the aims and object of the school board, "to keep the schools on a high plane, to keep abreast of the times in educational progress, to provide the best facilities for instruction in all the essential branches, to prepare the rising generation for the battle of life, to place the opportunities of acquiring education as free as air within reach of all, to see that every child receives at least the education prescribed by the statutes as the minimum, to cause the schools to impart a knowledge of the laws of health; in short, not only to develop the intellectual faculties of the young, but to instruct them in the duty of discriminating between right and wrong and to inculcate at all times the broad principles of virtue and patriotism, with a love of the true, the beautiful, the good."

"In order to promote the efficiency of the schools the people should exercise great care in selecting their representatives for the school board; and as they want the best schools, they should do their part in sending to the school board the very best and most highly educated men obtainable. Care should be taken not to elect men who aspire to political office, who would use the school board merely as a stepping stone to political preferment.

"But the very best school boards are sometimes prevented from giving effect to their judgment by limitation of power, by charter restrictions and other causes mostly of a political or sectarian character."

Politics should be eliminated from the school board; reference is made to the disagreeable predicaments of the past two years.

More power and a three year term should be given the superintendent; there should be a permanent tenure for teachers. A new impetus will be given to elementary education by the opening of the new state normal school. "Every vestige of old and antiquated methods will be wiped out, every teacher will have an opportunity of seeing the best methods put into practice."

The Janitor Problem.

The report shows up the disadvantage of having janitors independent of the school board; the best interests of the schools demand that this be otherwise.

Supervision of school architecture is needed, for the board knows what is wanted and needed.

Too often the size, structure, architecture of buildings depend upon the views of an outside committee and inadequate appropriations.

Improve the Study Courses.

Lowell schools are considered as comparing favorably with those of other cities; but they are susceptible of improvements. College professors would convert schools into academies; enthusiasts would load the curriculum with bobbies, while practical, experienced teachers complain that the number of studies is being increased to a dangerous extent; healthy pruning is urged; do not cling to old schedules and methods, but draw up a course which will benefit the greatest number. The time has gone by when children can afford to study for the sake of study or to gratify a teacher's enthusiasm in some branch. As a rule children leave school as soon as the law permits; time is too limited to be wasted on non-essentials. The demand is emphasized more and more each year that courses of study be thoroughly practical and utilitarian; the popular demand is much of one or a few things rather than a little of many things.

Wherein Are Defects.

The defects in the work of our schools are summed up in "superficiality" or want of thoroughness. To improve the school let "thoroughness" be the watchword; thoroughness in the great essentials, in everything undertaken, as a habit in general.

Hints for the Teachers.

How to secure thoroughness, is a teacher's query. One answer given is by imparting a knowledge of the matter in hand, then by judicious combination of repetition and interrogation; written examinations offer an invaluble method of training to carefulness and accuracy, and of detecting a want of thoroughness in the branches taught.

Thoroughness is the great essential first, then gradual step towards other branches; in this way thoroughness will be a safeguard against fads, hobbies and needless innovations.

The educational path should be direct and straight, and every child should be guided on the most direct course to the end to be attained.

Important Changes Needed.

Lowell needs to be up and doing in the movement for a more practical common school education. When manual training is provided for boys, cooking and sewing should be available for girls. There is room for retrenchment in arithmetic, one grammar master asserts that one-third of it can be dispensed with. History and geography need revising, but ample time should be allowed for language work. Of the opinions quoted from grammar masters, No. One says the spelling book is a relic of barbarism; the grammars used are designed for some ulterior scheme; nearly every study can be pruned; time can be saved by remodelling the schedule.

Number Two wants "music" cut for something more profitable; number Three emphasized the fact that the grammar school is the people's school, and it should not be preparatory to college.

Number Four has been quoted already; number five calls our schedules "antiquated."

Study of English.

In no branch is the want of thoroughness more noticeable than in English. The introductory report deals exhaustively with this subject and recommends more written language work, more effective correction of exercises. There are special instructors in writing and drawing, but there is more need of special work in language than in either branch. This article will repay perusal by the teachers.

The danger in kindergartens is from pressing the little ones to study while their minds are too plastic.

It is recommended that the salary of male assistants in the High school be increased from $900 to $900 in the second year and $1000 for the third and succeeding years.

It is recommended to dispense with slates and pencils in the grammar schools for various reasons. Medical inspection is favored if it can be had free of charge.

The cuts of the Lincoln school and the high school precede the report.

The superintendent's report deals at length with the prospective changes in educational lines after the normal school and the new textile school shall have been opened. It also outlines the course of manual training to be pursued.

THE YELLOWSTONE REGION.

Pleasingly Described by Dr. Parker Who Has Been There Several Times.

Dr. Moses G. Parker lectured to an audience of about 300 people in the High school hall, last evening. His talk was an illustrated one, on the Yellowstone Park, and some very fine views were shown. The lecture was under the auspices of the Teachers' Annuity Guild, and the proceeds will go to the Guild's fund.

Lowell has 100 members in the Guild, whose object it is to pay annuities to teachers on their retirement from service. The Guild already has $20,000 but in order to pay annuities must raise $40,000 in the next two years. The teachers pay 1 per cent. of their salaries, as an assessment.

HAD GONE TO THE JURY

MARTIN MANSLAUGHTER CASE NOW BEING WEIGHED.

At Noon No Word Had Been Received From the Jury Which Has Michael J. Martin's Fate in Their Hands.

The trial of Michael J. Martin on the charge of manslaughter by throwing a stone which it is alleged killed Patrick J. Buckley, was finished yesterday, and this morning Judge Richardson charged the jury.

The other government witnesses called were Isaac Johnson, Frank Mooney, John Mooney, Harry Griffith, Thomas Higgins, Capt. Moffatt, Inspector Allen, Chief Davis and Officer Hurley. The police testified that when they arrested him that night he said he knew what they wanted.

Isaac Johnson, colored, testified that he was struck with a stone and he went into the alley and chased the crowd out. He recognized one as Harry Griffith who testified that Martin went into the alley after having been ejected from the barroom, and that he was then bleeding from the mouth. At that time Martin said Roche struck him. He saw Martin throw stones at Roche and his companions after they left the barroom.

Patrick Buckley, son of the man who was killed, testified that he was talking to his father when the latter was struck. The stones were thrown with such force that one of them went through a window across the street and broke the leg off a chair. He said the stone which killed his father was thrown by a man taller than Martin.

Martin testified in his own behalf and said that immediately after the quarrel in the saloon he went directly home and threw no stones.

William Cogger testified that the man, he saw throwing the stones was not Martin.

Mayor Courtney made a strong address to the jury and commented upon the fact that Harry Griffith who was one of the government witnesses had left Lowell a day or two after the death of Buckley, and never turned up again until shortly before the trial.

Mr. Wier replied for the government.

THE LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

Joseph Haworth Excels as Richelieu in Lytton's Great Play.

The audience that heard Joseph Haworth in Richelieu last night was even larger than that which attended his presentation of Hamlet on the previous night.

It was also a more enthusiastic audience. Many of them who saw him in Hamlet wanted to see his personation of the great cardinal, and their verdict is, that as Richelieu, Haworth reaches greater heights than in his interpretation of the moody Dane. In the climaxes of the play he is particularly strong, and indeed it is doubtful if ever a Lowell audience saw the magic circle drawn with more dramatic force than it was inscribed around Julie by Haworth.

The various phases of intrigue, subtlety, cunning, patriotism, ambition and desperation were portrayed with a master hand. Perhaps the only fault that might be charged against Mr. Haworth in his Richelieu is, that scarcely at any point does he appear to be as old as feeble or infirm as in his lines he says he is. He assumes strength, vigor, passion everthing else better than the feebleness of age. This is a point that can be easily remedied. With a little improvement in this regard, a more bending form, a more severe cough, a greater shakiness in his limbs, less firmness of voice, less agility of movement, he would make an ideal Richelieu. His conception of the role, however, was excellent, and it indicated that Haworth's star is still ascending. He is a great actor who is likely to hold a foremost place on the American stage for years to come. His support was fairly good. Miss Atwell being effective as Julie, Mark Price a satisfactory Barrades, and Howard Gould a graceful Adrian. Miss Julia Bachelder of this city appeared to advantage in a minor role and is a promising girl. The remainder of the support was of average ability.

Sowing the Wind.

There will be a large audience tonight to see this great social drama, for its praise has been sounded by all who saw Mr. Frohman's company in the piece on its previous presentation.

"The Hustler" For Fun.

Better than ever before is the Hustler; it will be here on Thursday evening.

This piece, whose popularity and whose laugh-making powers seem to grow with the years, is one of the most uproariously funny entertainments of the times. Each season's alterations improve it. The ludicrous schemes of the moneyless but hopeful hustler are prolific of the most laughable incidents possible to imagine. The specialties are equally attractive, and this season they have the merit of novelty as well as that of intrinsic interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendal.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and their London company will appear at the Opera house, Friday evening, with their latest and most successful play, "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray." This play as a work of dramatic construction is said to have few equals in theatre literature. The character in which Mrs. Kendal appears, Paula Tanquery, is one which is entirely dissimilar to any one she has ever before taken, and gives her more opportunities to display her abilities as an actress of rare talent than all of her previous roles combined. "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" is a social study in which Mr. Pinero, the great English playwright, is said to have outdone himself, though the boldness of his theme and the fearless manner in which he treated it has provoked no end of discussion.

2 O'CLOCK

BANK IS CLOSED

Mild Sensation in the City of Nashua.

SAVINGS BANK WANTS TO STOP BUSINESS.

It Has a Fine Record For Over 41 Years.

The announcement that the Nashua Savings bank has closed its doors created a great stir in Nashua, yesterday.

It had been enjoined from receiving or paying out deposits.

The bank had successfully withstood a run early in the panic of 1893, which fact seemed to establish the bank's stability beyond question.

The winding up of the Mechanics' Savings bank, the temporary injunction issued against the Security Trust company and the recent excitement over the defalcation at the Indian Head National bank has made the temperature of the community easily feverish.

The order regarding the Nashua Savings bank came, however, before an inkling even of such a possibility came out, and the bank was closed.

The reasons for the action are stated by Treasurer Virgil C. Gilman as follows:

The Nashua Savings bank asked the commissioners to consider the question of voluntary liquidation, paying out its deposits and surrendering its charter. The reasons for such a course are: First, continued adverse legislation compelling the bank to reduce interest to 3 per cent., which caused and continues to cause large withdrawals; second, the panic of 1893 filled all timid depositors with alarm, and led to the withdrawal of all they could under the rules; third, the continued business depression necessitating withdrawals of large sums of money for legitimate use; fourth, the loss of three successive crops at the west, so that the farmers had nothing to sell, and, therefore, could not pay the interest on their mortgage loans for their notes at the local banks, and the banks, in turn, had to suspend unless help was furnished; fifth, the very large falling off in deposits, thereby compelling the bank to sell its securities to meet the calls until a point has been reached where, if continued, would imperil the principal of all the other depositors, and justice requires that their interest should be protected.

It was hoped and believed that 1895 would see a great revival of business and renewed prosperity, but thus far no such desired change has taken place, and the constant agitation of the savings bank question has worked harm rather than good.

It is believed that the assets are sufficient to pay its depositors in full, if sufficient time is allowed to convert them to best advantage and losses do not occur.

The bank is the oldest and largest in the city, the amount of deposits has been nearly $3,000,000, and its guarantee fund $150,000.

During its 40 years of existance it has never passed a dividend or failed to meet every dollar of its obligations.

Since Jan. 1, about the culmination of the Indian Head Bank defalcation, $150,000 has been paid depositors, and notices of withdrawals are on hand up to April 1 aggregating $100,000 more.

Hoping for a lull in withdrawals, the bank had borrowed $90,000, but, in justice to all depositors, the trustees deemed it unjust to go further at the present time.

The bank is the owner of much eastern security that is gilt-edged, and is also the possessor of much western paper that is of little importance, as far as ready cash goes now.

It is expected that Henry McCoy, secretary of San Francisco Y. M. C. A. will visit this city when he comes East to attend the international convention to be held in Springfield.

The drug store at the corner of Central and Middlesex Streets in Lowell was opened in 1848 by E. A. Staniels. Later it was owned by Hoyt & Shedd and by A. W. Harrison. After this, Albert Crowell conducted the business alone until 1892, when he was joined by Mr. J. W. Stott, under the firm name, Crowell & Stott. Mr. Crowell was in the Common Council in 1889-90. They say:

"There is no question but that Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best selling medicine on the market. We sell three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla to one bottle of any other preparation. Its sales have constantly increased and we always keep a large stock on hand. The fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has always kept ahead of anything else in the magnitude of its sales is convincing evidence that Hood's Sarsaparilla is a reliable medicine. People would not continue to buy it if they did not find real benefit in its use."

BELIEVED IN WITCHCRAFT.

A Most Extraordinary Case of Murder Arising From Superstition.

CLONMEL, Ire., March 27.—Ten persons were arraigned before a special court here yesterday, charged with murdering a woman named Cleary because they supposed her to be a witch. The prisoners included the murdered woman's husband and father.

The evidence showed that Mrs. Cleary was suffering from nervousness and bronchitis, and her husband, believing her to be bewitched, and in order to exorcise the evil spirit, obtained a concoction from a herbalist of the neighborhood. Then, while the other prisoners held the unfortunate woman in bed, her husband forced the obnoxious concoction of herbs down her throat. After this the suffering woman was held over a fire and dreadfully seared, until she declared, in the name of God, that she was not Cleary's wife.

This torture was repeated on the following day, but the woman refused to conform to her husband's request, whereupon he knocked her down, stripped off her clothing, poured paraffine over her body, then lighted it, and the woman burned to death in the presence of six male and two female relatives.

Cleary declared that he was not burning his wife, but that he was burning a witch, and that she would disappear up the chimney. When the woman was dead, her husband collected her charred remains in a sheet and buried them in a dyke beneath the mud, where they were found a week later.

Li's Instructions.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 27.—It is stated on good authority that in addition to the indemnity which will be guaranteed by the provisional occupation of the Chinese territory already occupied by the Japanese, Li Hung Chang is authorized to cede to Japan the Loo-Choo islands, the Majico-Sima group, the islands of Batan and Babuyan and the island of Formosa. Instructions have been given to Li Hung Chang ordering him to oppose any demand for the cession of territory on the Liao-Tung peninsula. As a last resort he may suggest the conversion of the peninsula into a buffer state between Corea and China, on condition that it be placed under the protection of Russia, France and England.

Excitable Statesmen.

VIENNA, March 27.—In the lower house of the Hungarian diet a returning officer connected with a recent election scandal appeared in the gallery. The members of the Opposition rose in a body and shouted: "Expel him;" "Remove the scoundrel!" "To the gallows with him!" "To the pillory with him!" at the same time beating upon their desks. The uproar was terrific. The president of the chamber tried to pacify the excited members, but found it impossible, until he compelled the obnoxious officer to withdraw.

Proved a Boomerang.

BERLIN, March 27.—In the lobbies of the reichstag the members have exchanged their experiences at Friedrichsruhe, and commented upon the probable consequences of Saturday's vote. The members of the Center party, especially, are beginning to see that they blundered. They were on the point of being on the friendliest terms with the government and realizing all their desires. Now they are further than ever from their goal.

The Colombian Revolution.

PANAMA, March 27.—The government has issued a bulletin claiming a victory over the rebels at Boyac. It was a costly one, however, for of the 3000 troops under General Reyes, which formed the expedition, 1500 dropped off through fatigue or disease during the march, and of the remaining 1500 who gave battle to the rebels, 700 were killed before the victory rested with the government forces.

Ela Days Are Numbered.

Li is 70 years old, and, although a giant physically, his years are against him.

THURSTON TO GO

Notifies State Department of His Intention.

HE KNOWS NOTHING OF A RECALL.

Will Result in Trouble With Little Hawaii.

WASHINGTON, March 27. — Minister Thurston, in regard to his intended departure for Honolulu, yesterday sent a formal notification of the fact to the state department, naming Frank Hastings, secretary of the legation, as charge d'affaires during his absence. This is in the regular order of diplomatic procedure under the circumstances. Mr. Thurston said that he had heard nothing regarding his recall, if one is desired.

The departure of Mr. Thurston from the United States without being recalled by his government will leave the relations between this government and Hawaii in a peculiar condition. It cannot be said that there is a rupture of diplomatic relations, but they will certainly be severely strained.

It is customary in ordinary cases where a minister leaves the United States permanently for him to present his letters of recall to the president and take his leave. But, as Mr. Thurston has not been recalled, he cannot do this.

A Parallel Case.

But in the celebrated Cataczy case, in which the Russian government had been requested to recall its objectionable minister, and the latter, before his government had passed upon the request, notified the department of state that he proposed to leave the United States on leave of absence.

Secretary Fish strongly objected and insisted that the United States would accept nothing less than the minister's recall. In the end Mr. Cataczy did leave the United States without being recalled, just as Mr. Thurston is about to do, turning over the business to a charge d'affaires, and our government accepted the situation and expressed itself as satisfied.

It was a long time before another minister came from Russia to Washington, and the similarity in the other features of the two incidents lends to the supposition that the parallel may be carried further, and that Mr. Hastings, the Hawaiian charge d'affaires, may be left here in that position for many months.

From a diplomatic point of view this cannot be regarded as a complete rupture of relations, but such a situation, similar again to that in which the Italian legation was left by the withdrawal of Baron Fava four years ago, is generally regarded as unsatisfactory and as calculated to make Mr. Willis' position as United States minister at Honolulu untenable.

Bullet In His Head.

NEW YORK, March 27. — Arthur B. Chase, 44 years old, committed suicide last night by shooting himself in the head. Chase was a man well known by the theatrical profession, having been for many years manager of the opera house in Holyoke. Chase had no occupation here, but he and his wife and child lived comfortably on his income. He had been despondent at times.

Thoroughly Considered.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—A contract was signed yesterday by Secretary Herbert with the John P. Holland Torpedo Boat company for the construction of a submarine torpedo boat for the use of the navy. This contract was signed only after a consideration extending through a period of nearly two years. The appropriation for a submarine torpedo boat was made over two years ago.

Croker Invokes a Blessing.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Richard Croker sailed for England today. He repeated in a carefully prepared interview the assertion that he is "out of politics." He said among other things: "If an election were to be held tomorrow the Tammany candidates would win by 70,000 votes. The last thing I want to say is God bless the 10,000 Democrats who stood up under the fierce storm which beat against Tammany Hall last fall and voted for honest Democracy."

Woman Murderer Condemned.

CHICAGO, March 27. — Maggie Tiller (colored) was yesterday condemned to be hanged for the murder of Charles Miller. She became infatuated with a colored woman named Freda Huntington, and was violently jealous of any attentions paid to Freda. The Tiller girl found Freda in company with Charles Miller, and she killed him.

Connecticut Newspaper Deal.

WINSTED, Conn., March 27.—The Citizen Printing company, publishers of The Daily Citizen and Weekly Leader, yesterday purchased the Winsted Daily and Weekly Herald. The Citizen company will discontinue The Daily Herald, but will issue The Weekly Herald.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Collector Kilbreth has received from Surveyor McGuire a report of the alleged violation of the quarantine laws committed by Secretary Carlisle. The collector refused to make public the contents of the document.

Had a Close Call.

BALTIMORE, March 27.—Schooner Falmouth, from Navassa, with phosphate, 29 negro laborers and two white superintendents, arrived yesterday. Last Saturday the vessel was almost wrecked, and all hands narrowly escaped death.

Electricity to Supersede Steam.

BUFFALO, March 27.—The New York Central railroad is to change its motive power on the Niagara Falls branch from steam to electricity. The distance is 25 miles.

Fatalities at a Fire.

CHICAGO, March 27. — "The Bell," a large clothing store, burned yesterday afternoon. Three men were fatally hurt. Loss, $75,000.

Not all custom tailors make as good clothes as we sell, some of the crack ones make better, but they charge out of all proportion for the difference in work.

Our best spring overcoats from Rogers, Peet & Co. are just as good as Lowell tailors can get up; fit as well, too. Such coats $20 to $28.

Other coats from the same house as low as $12 and $15, our make $8 to $15.

THERESA ROWE IS ILL AT THE CITY FARM.

Police Will Inquire Into the Cutting Affair of Yesterday—The Woman Had a Baby Born to Her Yesterday.

The domestic troubles of William A. F. Kelly, arrested yesterday afternoon for alleged assault with a knife on Theresa Rowe, the woman with whom he lived, reveals one of the most shocking cases in the experience of the police.

After the woman made the complaint, and Dr. Porter had dressed the wounds, he ordered her removed to the city farm, as she was on the eve of maternity.

She asked permission to return home and get some clothing and was allowed to do so.

Then in her squalid apartments the supreme moment came and later neighbors found her upon the floor in a helpless condition. A bonny little girl had been ushered into this world of care. The woman and child were later taken to the city farm.

In court today Kelly was held in $1100 until the woman can appear.

GHOST DIDN'T WALK

It is said he was "shy" $400.

Since playing in Brockton last week, when, on Wednesday, the ghost forgot to walk as usual, the members of the company have been blaming the treasurer, Mr. Edwards, who, Walsh told them, had disappeared with the receipts.

Mr. Edwards turned up all right in Lowell and explained that he had been ill and took no money with him.

Mr. Leighton Won the Play-off.

The billiard play-off at the Highland club last evening between Messrs. Leighton and Church resulted in a victory for the former by a score of 90 to 51.

THE LEXOW committee is now accused by Dr. Parkhurst of being in league with rascals. Thus doctors differ.

THE MAIL, an erstwhile temperance organ is much exercised lest Little Canada should be deprived of the boon of liquor licenses.

THE WARLIKE young chap or Jap, that fired on Li Hung Chang was inspired by patriotism no doubt but he may also have been inspired by a desire for notoriety. It was a cowardly act and one that greatly embarrasses Japan.

PRESIDENT SULLIVAN of the common council did the square thing in not attending the school board meeting on Monday evening. He had a right to be present and vote but in view of the pending decision in his case, he waived this right.

THE MEYERS voting machine has gone to the bow-ows. In fact the machine seemed to interfere too much in the contests, refusing in some cases to record dozens of votes and in others recording votes on the names of men who were not present at all. Whitestown, N. Y., has just discarded the machine as unreliable.

THE CITIZENS of Lowell whose political rights would be curtailed by the redistricting and charter amending bill are patiently waiting to see what the governor will do with the bill. If he signs it he will have forever forfeited his reputation for justice and a spirit of fair play that holds him above the trickery of unscrupulous partisans.

FOR SCARE heads and cuss words give us the Haverhill Times. One head is carried across the entire front page and alleges that the city "is being run to the devil by a damnable decision." As the devil seems to come in for considerable blame, it is expected that he will have a communication in the next issue taking exceptions to the editor's scintillating platitudinations.

THE ELECTRIC cars to Lawrence occasionally are disturbed by by turbulent characters. The conductors have the authority of special police officers but some of them do not know how to use their authority. "You shut up there or I'll punch your face." was the admonition given to a noisy character a few nights ago. The conductor was the more disorderly of the two.

THE MAIL will disown its fixed policy stated by a contemporary. It is one of those highly moral organs that affect to preach fair play and religious freedom for all men, but which devoutly practise the contrary. The relation of cause and effect must be reversed in the Mail's case. It was the O'Neil assaults of the past few weeks that caused the Mail to foster a spirit of intolerance during the last two years.

BILL HAYES' ASPIRATIONS.

Rep. Hayes must have some political office in view when he shows such a disregard for his business. His place was burned recently but so far as we know his loss may have been recouped by his insurance; but we do not believe that he is insured against the serious loss he is likely to sustain on account of his rabid, fanatical speech in the legislature on the redistricting bill. Mr. Hayes is obviously laying his wires for a senatorial nomination but he will find his popularity gone when next he comes before the people.

THE BEVERLY Times takes Major Merrill to task for his silence in regard to child insurance. It says:

"The evidence before the committee showed that three insurance companies alone that are represented in Boston hold insurance on 1,141,038 children under 10 years of age, and in Massachusetts alone there are 95,468 of this number insured in only two companies."

These figures are astounding but they do not prove anything wrong. The rate of mortality among children insured and those not insured would show whether the allegations of those who oppose such insurance are well founded. Such a record has not been put in evidence at the hearings.

The companies that insure children seldom pay out more than one cent out of every five they receive in death benefits. The charge that parents would neglect their children or what is still worse, murderously hasten their death can apply only to the most heartless and depraved parents and to but few even of these. In the slums of London, New York or Paris such a deplorable vice might attain large proportions, but never where the physical conditions are much better.

THE EMBERS of rebellion seem to be kindling into flame in the northwest. The system of schools is the same as in the United States, but the Catholics of Manitoba claim that there was an express agreement on entering the federation that the separate school system was to be maintained. On this ground the constitutionality of the new law was questioned and carried to England for decision by the Privy Council. That body decided in favor of the Catholic claims, and the Canadian government must now enforce its order. The Protestants threaten rebellion, but the matter may be settled by ordinary methods.

THE BOSTON Sunday Herald shows so many chronological and other errors in an historical article in Scribner's that the writer, Noah Brooks, might be expected to make a big effort to get off the earth. If one third of the Herald's allegations be correct, they prove him to be one of those able historians who draw upon their imagination for their facts.

CHARLES A. DANA is reported to have said there is no democratic party now. Until Mr. Dana proves his charges against Mr. Noyes of the Washington Star his statements will be taken cum grano salis.

HER SADNESS.

A Lesson In Diplomacy by an Artful Lady's Maid.

The beautiful billionairess was sad. Of course this sounds like a paradox, for no one can exactly understand how a billionairess can be otherwise than supremely, divinely, everlastingly happy. But the fact remained nevertheless she was miserable.

She sat by the lace curtained window, her rosy, dimpled feet upon a perfumed ottoman embroidered with thousand dollar hens' egg diamonds, impatiently awaiting her maid, who was bringing up from the cuisine an omelet of nightingales' eggs and a mint julep made of the whole Philadelphia mint. This was only her breakfast. You can judge from that what her dinner cost!

"You are disconsolate this morning, mam'zelle?" ventured the maid, removing the society sheet of the morning paper, especially printed for her on watered silk in ottar of roses ink, and replacing it with the delicate repast served in pearl studded golden dishes.

The beautiful billionairess raised her languid eyelids and heaved a deep pachouli scented sigh that fairly peeled the million dollar frescoes off the wall. "Yes; I am sad," she moaned, "very sad," and she took a $40,000 sip of the julep as a bracer.

"Why so?" persisted the maid, who always spoke to her mistress in one of 31 earthly or 200 heavenly dialects of Cupid. "Has not the duke been as persistent in his proposal as ever?"

"More so. I have to loan him $3,000,000 a day to get rid of him."

"Aren't your new Worth gowns masterpieces of extravagance?"

"Marvels! That extra 1½ bushels of rubies on my ball gown train retards my waltzing a little, but"—

"Do you long for Paris and fear the rough voyage?"

"Oh, dear no! I've arranged with the Standard Oil company to pour 10,000,000 barrels of oil per hour into the ocean during the time I am crossing to grease the track, you know"—

"What, then, can be the matter which so oppresses you?"

"Only to think," replied the beautiful billionairess, taking up the watered silk newspaper once more, "for five years I have been reported engaged to 83 men, on an average weekly, including every eligible bachelor or widower of both hemispheres, from a Zulu chief to the czar of Russia. This morning—ah, this morning, I am miserable! I have toiled through 69 columns of solid nonpareil and nary a single new engagement. It's awful!"

"Ah, mam'zelle, you cannot think that your popularity is on the wane. That is impossible!"

"Alas, I fear it—either that or else the society editors have died at their posts in faithful efforts to marry me off."

"No; I have it. Eureka!"

The fair one flushed a royal flush worthy to break the bank at Monte Carlo. "Quick, tell me," she cried, "why am I slighted thus?"

"They have exhausted the whole international directory!"

"Bravo!" exclaimed the other, springing to her feet. "Then I must consider their silence as the greatest compliment of my life. Marie, you are a petticoat Daniel. Your salary is raised $2,000 a minute. Swear that you will never leave me. I shall marry his dukelets, get you to doctor me up a divorce, and we will be the most popular women in the world. Go below and order us two golden bucks made of limberger cheese and a jailbird's egg, and four fingers each of B. C. 450 Cyprian from the wine cellars of Pericles, worth $6,000 a drop, and we'll toast society editors in blocks of five. Ah, you are a jewel Marie, a veritable jewel!"—New York World.

A Logical Inebriate.

"Are you drunk?"

"You bet."

"Then move off from here."

"Are you drunk?" queried the inebriate.

"No, I am sober," was the indignant response.

"Then you can move off from here a blamed sight easier than I can."—Texas Siftings.

Farmer Oatcake, who with his good wife, Mandy, is on a brief visit to a daughter-in-law in Buffalo, looked over the newspapers on Saturday in an endeavor to find a church service on the following day which he might attend, with hope of securing spiritual satisfaction. He soon gleaned that the following Scriptural subjects would be discussed from various city pulpits:

"Is the Trilby Craze Dying Out?"
"Fitzsimmons Versus Corbett."
"How the Pastor Spends His Vacation."
"Should Our Daughters Marry Foreign Noblemen?"
"High Sleeves and Theater Hats."
"The Gold Brick Saloon."
"Canal Street on Saturday Night."
"Wordsworth and the Lake School of Poetry."
"The Fifty-third Congress."
"Rights of Motormen."

Farmer Oatcake gave it up after awhile and laid down the paper, saying, with a sigh, "Laws sakes, Mandy, I do believe that the gospel and the scheme of salvation have gone out of fashion."—Buffalo Express.

How Scrimple Would Be of Value.

"Mr. Scrimple," said the magnate to the rising young lawyer, "I want to make use of your valuable services."

"Very well, sir," said Scrimple as he gasped at the joyous prospect of a first brief. "What can I do for you?"

"A firm which competes with my house," replied the magnate firmly, "is about to bring a damage suit against me, and I want you to get them to engage you as their attorney."—Chicago Record.

AMBITIOUS WOMEN

MAKE HEROES OF MEN.

She Will Brave Anything for the Man She Loves.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

When an ambitious woman loves a man she will spur him to heroic efforts. She will dare with him the rigors of the frozen North, and encourage him in daring dangers, almost unsurmountable.

Women are by nature ambitious according to their physical and mental strength. Hope and ambition come with perfect health, but vanish before sickness and despair.

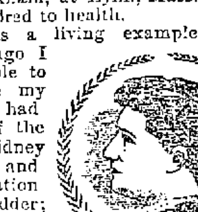

American women are, unfortunately, particularly subject to those painful female diseases that are the cause of so much hopelessness and misery.

Could all women realize the undeniable fact that they suffer unnecessarily, how much brighter life would be!

Lydia E. Pinkham devoted her life to the study of female diseases and their cause; and she discovered in the Vegetable Compound an absolute remedy. It succeeds in removing the cause of the trouble.

Women who rely more upon their own natural common-sense, rather than on the theories of their physicians, write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., and are soon restored to health.

Here is a living example: "Four months ago I was unable to stand on my feet. I had falling of the womb, kidney trouble, and inflammation of the bladder; the backache and bearing-down pains were dreadful. My physician could give me no relief. A friend said, try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Well, I did. Oh, if every suffering woman would do the same, they would be cured, cured absolutely and entirely, as I am!" MRS. WM. M. MOREY, 20 Seymour St., Pittsfield, Mass.

GERMAN KAISER

Exchange Courtesies With the Iron Duke.

HONORS HEAPED UPON GRAND OLD MAN

In Recognition of His Services to His Country.

FRIEDRICHSRUHE, March 27.—Emperor William, at the head of a detachment of cavalry, infantry and artillery, with colors flying and bands playing, paid his respects to Prince Bismarck yesterday, and presented him with a sword of honor in behalf of the army, and congratulated him upon nearing the 80th anniversary of his birth.

The ceremonies attending the visit of the emperor to the great chancellor, though marred by showers of rain, were brilliant and imposing.

When the emperor arrived at the point of assemblage of the troops from Aumuhle railroad station, he found drawn up ready for his inspection a squadron of the Halberstadt Cuirassiers, a regiment of infantry and a squadron of hussars, all with colors flying, with their regimental bands in attendance, and a battery of the Holstein artillery regiment.

With the emperor at its head, this force was marched to an open space in Prince Bismarck's park, and upon arrival there the troops were deployed in parade order.

Owing to the dense foliage of the trees in the park and neighborhood the troops were not seen until they actually emerged upon the parade ground.

The crown prince and his suite had, in the meantime, walked to the parade ground, and as the emperor appeared on one side Prince Bismarck's carriage emerged upon the ground from the other side. The prince wore the uniform of the Halberstadt Cuirassiers.

The Emperor's Greeting.

When the emperor caught sight of the prince he spurred his horse forward, and rode at a fast canter to the carriage of the veteran statesman and soldier and shook hands with him. The emperor then presented the crown prince and his suite to Prince Bismarck. The latter took the young prince into his carriage, and, with the emperor riding behind it, and General von Waldersee walking beside it, the carriage was driven down the lines of soldiers, the officers saluting, the troops presenting arms and the bands playing patriotic airs, as the prince and emperor passed.

The prince's carriage was then driven to the middle of the parade grounds, where Prince Bismarck alighted. His majesty took up a position in front of the troops, delivered an address of congratulation to the prince, and, in the name of the army, presented him with a sword of honor of antique design, richly embossed and inlaid with gold.

During the course of his remarks the emperor said, referring to the presence of the cuirassiers, that he handed him the sword in recognition of his deeds, adding: "I could not have found a better present than a sword, whether as the weapon of the ancient Germans or as a symbol of never-failing resource, and upon it are engraved the united arms of the reichstag.

"May your serene highness look upon this as a token of gratitude for deeds recorded in history, which were brought to a conclusion 25 years ago. Let us, comrades, shout hurrah for his serene highness, Prince Bismarck, Duke of Lauenberg!"

An Affecting Scene.

Prince Bismarck, who was deeply moved, then resented himself in his carriage, and the emperor ordered the troops to march past the prince's carriage, and the great chancellor returned the salutes of the troops with evident pleasure. At the end of this ceremony Prince Bismarck thanked the emperor for his kindness and courtesy and kissed his majesty's hand.

After this the prince returned to the castle stood on the terrace, and the emperor led the cuirassiers past the front of the castle and back again.

The emperor afterward entered the schloss and lunched with Prince Bismarck, taking this occasion to present his host with a seal from the writing of his grandfather, Emperor William I.

During the luncheon the cuirassiers mounted guard outside the castle and the artillery remained as a guard of honor on parade ground. From that spot, when the signal was given that the emperor proposed the health of Prince Bismarck, the artillery fired a salute.

After the review, Prince Bismarck was joined by his sons, Count Herbert and Count William, and by Count and Countess Rantzau, Dr. Schweininger and others of the household who witnessed the presentation.

The emperor in his speech spoke loudly and clearly, and when he handed the sword of honor to Prince Bismarck, the latter threw aside his cloak and stood "attention" in the rain. It was then seen that he wore the broad yellow ribbon of the Order of the Black Eagle.

When the emperor called for cheers for Prince Bismarck at the conclusion of the ceremonies, it was responded to unanimously by the troops and people.

The imperial train started from here on its return to Berlin at 8:27 p. m. At the last moment Prince Bismarck appeared on the platform in order to take final leave of the emperor, and cheers were raised and continued long after the prince re-entered the castle.

TO PRESERVE THE HEALTH

INEBRIETY OF VARIOUS KINDS AND ITS EFFECTS.

In the usual acceptation of the term intoxication, or drunkenness, or inebriety—for they all mean practically the same thing—is referred to the excessive use of alcoholic beverages in one form or another. Norman Kerr, the highest English authority on the subject, has pointed out, however, that there are a great many things besides alcohol which produce intoxication, and that alcoholic inebriety is not so dangerous or deleterious in its effects as some other kinds of intoxication.

Dr. Kerr enumerates among the things that "make drunk come," as the Indian expresses it, ether, cocaine, eau de cologne, iodine, opium, hasheesh, paraffin, kerosene and even such seemingly innocuous substances as cod liver oil and castor oil. It would seem almost incredible that there could be such a thing as kerosene inebriety or cod liver oil intoxication, but the records of scientific research, as set forth by Dr. Kerr, are not to be disputed.

The fact seems to be that overindulgence in any one of the numerous substances of a certain class begets a cumulative appetite, and that this is accompanied in time by functional derangement, and, worse still, by a slackening and weakening of moral fiber. Tea, coffee and tobacco, while less injurious to most people than alcohol or opium or ether, serve to illustrate the familiar saying that the appetite grows by what it feeds on. The tobacco habit, the coffee habit, the tea habit, may grow on one until what was once a want becomes an actual need, and each is as necessary to the comfort if not the health of the devotee as food itself, remarks the San Francisco Chronicle.

Vitality of the Brain and Heart.

There are two parts of the human organism, Dr. Balfour tells us, which if wisely used "largely escape senile failure." These two are the brain and the heart. Persons who think have often wondered why brain workers, great statesmen and others, should continue to work with almost unimpaired mental activity and energy up to a period when most of the organs and functions of the body are in a condition of advanced senile decay. There is a physiological reason for this, and Dr. Balfour tells us what it is. The normal brain, he affirms, "remains vigorous to the last, and that "because its nutrition is especially provided for." Who is there among those who have reached or passed middle age that will not be rejoiced to find such admirable physiological warrant for the belief that the brain may continue to work and even to improve almost to the very last hour of life? As in the case of the brain, there seems to be excellent physiological warrant for the conclusion that the aged heart succeeds to, at any rate, a relative increase of strength as time goes on.

Damp Linen.

Hall's Journal of Health affirms that damp linen is sufficient to account for frequent colds, consumption and premature death of a whole family, and where the mischief, not having taken that direction, is developed in the form of a rheumatism, which, once set in from that cause, is generally incurable. All body linen shortly before putting on should be made dry by a good fire. Whenever that is impossible, it is a good plan to put the linen between the blankets of your bed all night in a position to get plenty of heat. Those who have experienced no signal evidence of the mischief of damp linen are apt to be careless on the subject, but the carelessness will inevitably entail its punishment, which is likely to accumulate insidiously until it is too late.

A Sure Cure For Snoring.

Six drops of olive oil to a pinch of mustard taken just before getting into bed. The function of the oil is that of a lubricant to the larynx, while the mustard acts as a counter irritant. The cure was discovered by the late Dr. O'Dowd of Kilkenny and has proved so effectual that no native of that county ever snores, at least so says the Philadelphia Times.

THE MODEL HOSTESS.

With Imperturbable Calm and Ready Tact She Makes Everything a Success.

A woman may possess wealth untold. She may have the kindest of hearts and the brightest of minds, but unless she has absolute control of her feelings there will be some time in her career as hostess that she will display annoyance or flurry, and the contagion spreading to her guests will cause an otherwise successful entertainment to die out in undisguised failure.

A model hostess must to all appearances be made of stone so far as disagreeable happenings are concerned. Even though a guest or careless waiter inadvertently breaks a bit of china which can never be replaced, she must smile on as though the loss of the entire set would but emphasize the pleasure of the evening. Her well bred calm inspires her guests with a feeling of confidence, and, though in her heart she may be very dubious about certain important details of her dinner or dance, if she does not show her anxiety everything will pass off to a happy conclusion.

A flurried hostess or nervous host, whose countenance but ill conceals the worry felt, can do more toward making the guests uncomfortable than if the soup were served stone cold and the salad dressing were ruined by a too bountiful quantity of vinegar. An imperturbable calm and a ready tact are the two important factors in the making of a model hostess. Secure these by hook or crook, and you need never fear for the success of any of your entertainments, remarks an exchange.

Napkin Etiquette.

There is a great deal of uncertainty as to whether it is or is not the thing to fold the napkin after a formal meal. If one is staying in the house and knows that napkin rings are in use, it seems a reflection upon that custom to fling the napkin down in an untidy heap. An elegantly appointed table deserves better treatment, even at the end of a meal, than those disheveled piles of drapery. Therefore it always seems fittest to simply half fold the napkin and not attract attention to it either by one obtrusive habit or the other.

The Tie Usually Disappears Also.

"I wonder who started that slang about getting it in the neck?" asked the curious boarder.

"Some man whose wife bought him a necktie at a bargain sale likely," said the cheerful idiot, and then the conversation languished while the pie disappeared.—Indianapolis Journal.

Changing Day by Day.

Our features, our personalities are constantly changing. To preserve the likeness of today a photograph is the best record. Freeman, the fotografer, is an artist in his line. P. O. block, take the elevator.

FROM OUR 5 O'CLOCK EDITION Of Yesterday.

HER THROAT CUT

William Kelly, She Said Did the Deed.

THERESA ROWE TOLD THE POLICE OF IT.

Deplorable State of Morals is Brought to Light.

William Kelly, 35 years of age, and a bill poster by occupation, is locked up at the police station, charged with assault, with a dangerous weapon upon Theresa Rowe.

The assault occurred at 12.30 this noon in a house on Davidson street, in which Kelly and the Rowe woman reside. Kelley was arrested upon complaint of the woman who, after the assault went to the station and told her story to the officer in charge. She says that Kelly came into the house at noon and had some beefsteak which he wanted cooked. She refused to cook it and he then struck her with a knife he held in his hand. There was no sign of liquor on the woman when she came to the station. She and Kelly have lived together during the past three years. The woman has a child nineteen months old, and she is at present in a delicate condition. She has been married once, but she and her husband separated when she learned that he was already a married man and had a wife living in England.

It was then that she met Kelly and took up her residence with him. It is further said that Kelly has several times asked her to marry him, but she has refused because of his position and his habits. She claims that he works only occasionally and "hangs around" saloons a great part of his time.

Kelly when taken to the station said that he came to the house with some beefsteak which he was cutting with a knife when she came along and took the knife and cut herself.

Dr. Porter dressed the woman's wounds which consisted of a gash on her throat and a badly cut hand. After being attended by the doctor she returned home.

DR. ORRIN FITZGERALD ILL

REPORT FROM DEXTER, ME., IS OF A SERIOUS NATURE.

Trainmen Found Him in a Precarious Condition After Having Taken Chloral—Doctors are Working on Him With Great Secrecy.

A despatch from Dexter, Me., to the Herald states that Dr. Orrin Fitzgerald, proprietor of the Medical Home, Allston, Mass., and of Colonial hall, Tyngsboro', Mass., is very ill at the home of his father in Dexter. He has been in poor health for some time, owing to overwork. The doctor has intended to close up his business in Massachusetts and take up his abode in Dexter, where his fine residence has so long been vacant.

Two doctors have been working over him since his return to Dexter, Saturday evening, and say that there is little chance for his recovery.

Profound secrecy is observed as to the cause of his illness, but little doubt is entertained that it is due to his sensational attempt to end his life on a train last Saturday although the family asserts that the rumors regarding his attempted suicide, are not correct.

The trainmen state, however, that they found him in the toilet room with a towel about his head and a strong odor of chloral about, and that he said a Portland doctor had told him he had a cancer, and that he should put a bullet through his head.

BURGLARS WITH A VENGEANCE

RICHMOND, ME., HAD AN EXCITING TIME EARLY TODAY.

Post Office Burglarized and a Business Block Set on Fire by the Men—Heavy Loss in Many Ways.

By Associated Press to THE SUN.

RICHMOND, Me., March 26.—Three burglars got in their nefarious work successfully about 1.30 a. m. by breaking open the safe in the post office. The explosion overturned a hot stove in the block from which a fire started which destroyed the building, a loss of $25,000. The post office was robbed of $650 in stamps and $205 in cash.

The men were seen to leave the building when the fire was discovered, but no trace of them has been found.

LOCAL NOTES.

The following delegates have been chosen to the Foresters convention from Court Middlesex: Wm. J. Johnson, John W. Downing, Hugh J. Leonard, Charles Connors, Patrick O'Leary, Edward McGann, Thomas Butler.

"George R. Dana, superintendent of Jeremiah Clark's machinery agency, Lowell, Mass.," was written on the Kimball house register, yesterday, and a dozen men jumped to the conclusion that he was the celebrated editor of The Sun. Cards went up to his room in profusion, only to be answered that the gentleman was out. Mr. Dana says that he had no idea that the vigorous New Yorker was in such a demand so far away from home.—Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution, March 19.

Two Very Bad Men.

James McTighe and James Tobin were taken in custody yesterday. They had been put off a train in the Bleachery station and tried to run things their own way on a Gorham street car, on which Jere Calahan was conductor and George Boyle motorman. They had a row on the car and later they got to fighting in a saloon on Lawrence street. In court today three complaints were against each, for drunkenness they got two months, for assault three additional months and the evading car fare case placed on file, in the case of each defendant.

POOR DAVID CHRISTIE.

Identification of the Body of the Man Found Sunday—His Daughter Had Missed Her Father.

At last the remains of the man found dead in Tewksbury have been identified.

The body is that of David Christie and was recognized by his daughter, Mrs. Ezra Bowden, residing on Andrews street, with whom he formerly lived.

He left home Jan. 3 to go to Boston to look for work and a letter was received from him two days after. Since that time nothing has been heard from him and it was presumed he had found employment.

It is now thought that he was unsuccessful in his search and being without money started to walk home, became exhausted by the roadside and had lain there until found.

Deceased was 54 years of age and leaves a wife in Ottawa. For five years he led the singing in Rev. Dr. Court's church which accounts for the pitch pipe found in his pocket. He was a man of good character and did not use liquor.

The remains will be interred this afternoon.

In an interview, Mrs. Bowden says: "I identified the body by the clothing and the musician's pitch pipe found in his pockets. The arctics have the patches put on by my father before he left home. My father was a designer on Paisley shawls until they went out of fashion. He was a native of Scotland, and 54 years old. He was for five years leader of the choir in the First Presbyterian church. He had been in poor health and only worked occasionally.

"When he left our house, Jan. 3 last, he did not say where he was going, but we had a letter from him dated Boston, Jan. 5. We thought he had gone to visit some relatives, but when he did not return we wrote them, but did not find any trace of him. He must have attempted to walk to Lowell when he was prostrated by the storm.

"My mother is dead, and there are no other children. I did not think it was my father when I first read in the newspapers of the body being found. I brought with me a sample of the cloth from which his clothing had been made."

THIEVES WERE LUCKY

A Providence despatch says:

The offices of Drs. J. F. Lennon and W. P. Church, at 357 Westminster street, were broken into last night, and about $60 worth of gold, silver and dentists' tools were stolen.

Dr. Lennon reports his loss at $20 and Dr. Church $40. From the condition that the doors were found in this morning the thieves must have secreted themselves in the building before it was closed for the night and then left by a window in the rear.

The block in which the building is located is bounded by Snow and Chapel streets, Westminster lane and Westminster street, and is at the mercy of marauders, as with little or no trouble they can get upon the roof of the lower buildings and wander from roof to roof.

Two men were seen on the roof yesterday, but as there are many men who go upon the building each day to look after the many wires little or no attention was paid to them.

Drs. Church and Lennon are confident that the work was done by some one acquainted with the trade for only the best of goods and tools were taken.

Dr. Lennon is a son of Mr. John Lennon of this city.

LOWELL SCHOOLS

Are They Abreast of the Times?

Grammar Masters Severely Criticize the Present Schedule.

And Several Say Text Books Are Out of Date and Curriculum Not Practical

SCHOOL COMMITTEE REPORT FOR '94 SUGGESTS SEVERAL IMPROVEMENTS.

Thoroughness in Teaching Great Essentials the Keynote—Thoughts For Parents to Consider.

The keynote of the school committee's report for 1894 is "thoroughness, thoroughness, thoroughness" in the great essentials, and the teachers of the city can gain something by reading that report carefully.

The second feature is a demand for greater attention to the English branches. In this respect the report will at once commend itself to every parent having a child in the public schools. The report shows the need of a radical change in the curriculum of our grammar schools. No grammar master in the city speaks well of the curriculum and they have the best opportunity of knowing its defects. For many years parents have complained of the inadequacy of this course of study claiming that it is not as practical as it should be. The report has statements from grammar masters pointing out defects in the course of study; one of these on page 38 says tersely and pointedly: "The whole grammar school course needs co-ordination and unification so that the work of the various grades will fit in as parts of a perfect whole." We spend over a third of our entire time upon mathematics while in common with the schools of many cities our weak points are in reading and in writing English."

Too much time is frittered away on nonessential studies in the schools at the expense of neglecting the three R's which go to make up the foundation of a practical education.

Strong Points of the Report.

The new report is the largest volume yet brought out by the board. Manual training forms an important chapter with illustrations of the present school. The statistical portions are similar to those of previous years only of greater extent as the school department grew surprisingly last year. An abstract of the report is here appended. Introductory, the report tells of the aims and object of the school board, "to keep the schools on a high plane, to keep abreast of the times in educational progress, to provide the best facilities for instruction in all the essential branches, to prepare the rising generation for the battle of life, to place the opportunities of acquiring education as free as air within reach of all, to see that every child receives at least the education prescribed by the statutes as the minimum, to cause the schools to impart a knowledge of the laws of health; in short, not only to develop the intellectual faculties of the young, but to instruct them in the duty of discriminating between right and wrong and to inculcate at all times the broad principles of virtue and patriotism, with a love of the true, the beautiful, the good."

"In order to promote the efficiency of the schools the people should exercise great care in selecting their representatives for the school board; and as they want the best schools, they should do their part in sending to the school board the very best and most highly educated men obtainable. Care should be taken not to elect men who aspire to political office, who would use the school board merely as a stepping stone to political preferment.

"But the very best school boards are sometimes prevented from giving effect to their judgment by limitation of power, by charter restrictions and other causes mostly of a political or sectarian character."

Politics should be eliminated from the school board; reference is made to the disagreeable predicaments of the past two years.

More power and a three year term should be given the superintendent; there should be a permanent tenure for teachers. A new impetus will be given to elementary education by the opening of the new state normal school. "Every vestige of old and antiquated methods will be wiped out, every teacher will have an opportunity of seeing the best methods put into practice."

The Janitor Problem.

The report shows up the disadvantage of having janitors independent of the school board; the best interests of the schools demand that this be otherwise.

Supervision of school architecture is needed, for the board knows what is wanted and needed.

Too often the size, structure, architecture of buildings depend upon the views of an outside committee and inadequate appropriations.

Improve the Study Courses.

Lowell schools are considered as comparing favorably with those of other cities; but they are susceptible of improvements. College professors would convert schools into academies; enthusiasts would load the curriculum with hobbies, while practical, experienced teachers complain that the number of studies is being increased to a dangerous extent; healthy pruning is urged; do not cling to old schedules and methods, but draw up a course which will benefit the greatest number. The time has gone by when children can afford to study for the sake of study or to gratify a teacher's enthusiasm in some branch. As a rule children leave school as soon as the law permits; time is too limited to be wasted on non-essentials. The demand is emphasized more and more each year that courses of study be thoroughly practical and utilitarian; the popular demand is much of one or a few things rather than a little of many things.

Wherein Are Defects.

The defects in the work of our schools are summed up in "superficiality" or want of thoroughness. To improve the schools let "thoroughness" be the watchword; thoroughness in the great essentials, in everything undertaken, as a habit in general.

Hints for the Teachers.

How to secure thoroughness, is a teacher's query. One answer given is by imparting a knowledge of the matter in hand, then by judicious combination of repetition and interrogation; written examinations offer an invaluable method of training to carefulness and accuracy, and of detecting a want of thoroughness in the branches taught.

Thoroughness is the great essential first, then gradual step towards other branches; in this way thoroughness will be a safeguard against fads, hobbies and needless innovations.

The educational path should be direct and straight, and every child should be guided on the most direct course to the end to be attained.

Important Changes Needed.

Lowell needs to be up and doing in the movement for a more practical common school education. When manual training is provided for boys, cooking and sewing should be available for girls. There is room for retrenchment in arithmetic, one grammar master asserts that one-third of it can be dispensed with. History and geography need revising, but ample time should be allowed for language work. Of the opinions quoted from grammar masters, No. One says the spelling book is a relic of barbarism; the grammars used are designed for some ulterior scheme; nearly every study can be pruned; time can be saved by remodelling the schedule.

Number Two wants "music" cut for something more profitable; number Three emphasized the fact that the grammar school is the people's school, and it should not be preparatory to college.

Number Four has been quoted already; number five calls our schedules "antiquated."

Study of English.

In no branch is the want of thoroughness more noticeable than in English. The introductory report deals exhaustively with this subject and recommends more written language work, more effective correction of exercises. There are special instructors in writing and drawing, but there is more need of special work in language than in either branch. This article will repay perusal by the teachers.

The danger in kindergartens is from pressing the little ones to study while their minds are too plastic.

It is recommended that the salary of male assistants in the High school be increased from $800 to $900 in the second year and $1000 for the third and succeeding years.

It is recommended to dispense with slates and pencils in the grammar school's for various reasons. Medical inspection is favored if it can be had free of charge.

The cuts of the Lincoln school and the high school precede the report.

The superintendent's report deals at length with the prospective changes in educational lines after the normal school and the new textile school shall have been opened. It also outlines the course of manual training to be pursued.

THE YELLOWSTONE REGION.

Pleasingly Described by Dr. Parker Who Has Been There Several Times.

Dr. Moses G. Parker lectured to an audience of about 300 people in the High school hall, last evening. His talk was an illustrated one, on the Yellowstone Park; and some very fine views were shown. The lecture was under the auspices of the Teachers' Annuity Guild, and the proceeds will go to the Guild's fund.

Lowell has 100 members in the Guild, whose object it is to pay annuities to teachers on their retirement from service. The Guild already has $20,000 but in order to pay annuities must raise $40,000 in the next two years. The teachers pay 1 per cent. of their salaries, as an assessment.

HAD GONE TO THE JURY

MARTIN MANSLAUGHTER CASE NOW BEING WEIGHED.

At Noon No Word Had Been Received From the Jury Which Has Michael J. Martin's Fate in Their Hands.

The trial of Michael J. Martin on the charge of manslaughter by throwing a stone which it is alleged killed Patrick J. Buckley, was finished yesterday, and this morning Judge Richardson charged the jury.

The other government witnesses called were Isaac Johnson, Frank Mooney, John Mooney, Harry Griffith, Thomas Higgins, Capt. Moffatt, Inspector Allen, Chief Davis and Officer Hurley. The police testified that when they arrested him that night he said he knew what they wanted.

Isaac Johnson, colored, testified that he was struck with a stone and he went into the alley and chased the crowd out. He recognized one as Harry Griffith who testified that Martin went into the alley after having been ejected from the barroom, and that he was then bleeding from the mouth. At that time Martin said Roche struck him. He saw Martin throw stones at Roche and his companions after they left the barroom.

Patrick Buckley, son of the man who was killed, testified that he was talking to his father when the latter was struck. The stones were thrown with such force that one of them went through a window across the street and broke the leg off a chair. He said the stone which killed his father was thrown by a man taller than Martin.

Martin testified in his own behalf and said that immediately after the quarrel in the saloon he went directly home and threw no stones.

William Cogger testified that the man, he saw throwing the stones was not Martin.

Mayor Courtney made a strong address to the jury and commented upon the fact that Harry Griffith who was one of the government witnesses had left Lowell a day or two after the death of Buckley, and never turned up again until shortly before the trial.

Mr. Wier replied for the government.

THE LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

Joseph Haworth Excels as Richelieu in Lytton's Great Play.

The audience that heard Joseph Haworth in Richelieu last night was even larger than that which attended his presentation of Hamlet on the previous night.

It was also a more enthusiastic audience. Many of those who saw him in Hamlet wanted to see his personation of the great cardinal, and their verdict is, that as Richelieu, Haworth reaches greater heights than in his interpretation of the moody Dane. In the climaxes of the play he is particularly strong, and indeed it is doubtful if ever a Lowell audience saw the magic circle drawn with more dramatic force than it was inscribed around Julie by Haworth.

The various phases of intrigue, subtlety, cunning, patriotism, ambition and desperation were portrayed with a master hand. Perhaps the only fault that might be charged against Mr. Haworth in his Richelieu is, that scarcely at any point does he appear to be as old as feeble or infirm as in his lines he says he is. He assumes strength, vigor, passion everthing else better than the feebleness of age. This is a point that can be easily remedied. With a little improvement in this regard, a more bending form, a more severe cough, a greater shakiness in his limbs, less firmness of voice, less agility of movement, he would make an ideal Richelieu. His conception of the role, however, was excellent, and it indicated that Haworth's star is still ascending. He is a great actor who is likely to hold a foremost place on the American stage for years to come. His support was fairly good. Miss Atwell being effective as Julie, Mark Price a satisfactory Barradas, and Howard Gould a graceful Adrian. Miss Julia Bachelder of this city appeared to advantage in a minor role and is a promising girl. The remainder of the support was of average ability.

Sowing the Wind.

There will be a large audience tonight to see this great social drama, for its praise has been sounded by all who saw Mr. Frohman's company in the piece on its previous presentation.

"The Hustler" For Fun.

Better than ever before is the Hustler; it will be here on Thursday evening.

This piece, whose popularity and whose laugh-making powers seem to grow with the years, is one of the most uproariously funny entertainments of the times. Each season's alterations improve it. The ludicrous schemes of the moneyless but hopeful hustler are prolific of the most laughable incidents possible to imagine. The specialties are equally attractive, and this season they have the merit of novelty as well as that of intrinsic interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendal.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and their London company will appear at the Opera house, Friday evening, with their latest and most successful play, "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray." This play as a work of dramatic construction is said to have few equals in theatre literature. The character in which Mrs. Kendal appears, Paula Tanquery, is one which is entirely dissimilar to any one she has ever before taken, and gives her more opportunities to display her abilities as an actress of rare talent than all of her previous roles combined. "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" is a social study in which Mr. Pinero, the great English playwright, is said to have outdone himself, though the boldness of his theme and the fearless manner in which he treated it has provoked no end of discussion.

BANK IS CLOSED

Mild Sensation in the City of Nashua.

SAVINGS BANK WANTS TO STOP BUSINESS.

It Has a Fine Record For Over 41 Years.

The announcement that the Nashua Savings bank has closed its doors created a great stir in Nashua, yesterday.

It had been enjoined from receiving or paying out deposits.

The bank had successfully withstood a run early in the panic of 1893, which fact seemed to establish the bank's stability beyond question.

The winding up of the Mechanics' Savings bank, the temporary injunction issued against the Security Trust company and the recent excitement over the defalcation at the Indian Head National bank has made the temperature of the community easily feverish.

The order regarding the Nashua Savings bank came, however, before an inkling even of such a possibility came out, and the bank was closed.

The reasons for the action are stated by Treasurer Virgil C. Gilman as follows:

The Nashua Savings bank asked the commissioners to consider the question of voluntary liquidation, paying out its deposits and surrendering its charter. The reasons for such a course are: First, continued adverse legislation compelling the bank to reduce interest to 3 per cent., which caused and continues to cause large withdrawals; second, the panic of 1893 filled all timid depositors with alarm, and led to the withdrawal of all they could under the rules; third, the continued business depression necessitating withdrawals of large sums of money for legitimate use; fourth, the loss of three successive crops at the west, so that the farmers had nothing to sell, and, therefore, could not pay the interest on their mortgage loans for their notes at the local banks, and the banks, in turn, had to suspend unless help was furnished; fifth, the very large falling off in deposits, thereby compelling the bank to sell its securities to meet the calls until a point has been reached where, if continued, would imperil the principal of all the other depositors, and justice requires that their interest should be protected.

It was hoped and believed that 1895 would see a great revival of business and renewed prosperity, but thus far no such desired change has taken place, and the constant agitation of the savings bank question has worked harm rather than good.

It is believed that the assets are sufficient to pay its depositors in full, if sufficient time is allowed to convert them to best advantage and losses do not occur.

The bank is the oldest and largest in the city, the amount of deposits has been nearly $3,000,000, and its guarantee fund $150,000.

During its 40 years of existance it has never passed a dividend or failed to meet every dollar of its obligations.

Since Jan. 1, about the culmination of the Indian Head Bank defalcation, $150,000 has been paid depositors, and notices of withdrawals are on hand up to April 1 aggregating $100,000 more.

Hoping for a lull in withdrawals, the bank had borrowed $90,000, but, in justice to all depositors, the trustees deemed it unjust to go further at the present time.

The bank is the owner of much eastern security that is gilt-edged, and is also the possessor of much western paper that is of little importance, as far as ready cash goes now.

It is expected that Henry McCoy, secretary of San Francisco Y. M. C. A. will visit this city when he comes East to attend the international convention to be held in Springfield.

The drug store at the corner of Central and Middlesex Streets in Lowell was opened in 1848 by E. A. Staniels. Later it was owned by Hoyt & Shedd and by A. W. Harrison. After this, Albert Crowell conducted the business alone until 1892, when he was joined by Mr. J. W. Stott, under the firm name, Crowell & Stott. Mr. Crowell was in the Common Council in 1889-90. They say:

other preparation. Its sales have constantly increased and we always keep a large stock on hand. The fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has always kept ahead of anything else in the magnitude of its sales is convincing evidence that Hood's Sarsaparilla is a reliable medicine. People would not continue to buy it if they did not find real benefit in its use."

BELIEVED IN WITCHCRAFT.

A Most Extraordinary Case of Murder Arising From Superstition.

CLONMEL, Ire., March 27.—Ten persons were arraigned before a special court here yesterday, charged with murdering a woman named Cleary because they supposed her to be a witch. The prisoners included the murdered woman's husband and father.

The evidence showed that Mrs. Cleary was suffering from nervousness and bronchitis, and her husband, believing her to be bewitched, and in order to exorcise the evil spirit, obtained a concoction from a herbalist of the neighborhood. Then, while the other prisoners held the unfortunate woman in bed, her husband forced the obnoxious concoction of herbs down her throat. After this the suffering woman was held over a fire and dreadfully seared, until she declared, in the name of God, that she was not Cleary's wife.

This torture was repeated on the following day, but the woman refused to conform to her husband's request, whereupon he knocked her down, stripped off her clothing, poured paraffine over her body, then lighted it, and the woman burned to death in the presence of six male and two female relatives.

Cleary declared that he was not burning his wife, but that he was burning a witch, and that she would disappear up the chimney. When the woman was dead, her husband collected her charred remains in a sheet and buried them in a dyke beneath the mud, where they were found a week later.

Li's Instructions.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 27.—It is stated on good authority that in addition to the indemnity which will be guaranteed by the provisional occupation of the Chinese territory already occupied by the Japanese, Li Hung Chang is authorized to cede to Japan the Loo-Choo islands, the Majico-Sima group, the islands of Batan and Babuyan and the island of Formosa. Instructions have been given to Li Hung Chang ordering him to oppose any demand for the cession of territory on the Liao-Tung peninsula. As a last resort he may suggest the conversion of the peninsula into a buffer state between Corea and China, on condition that it be placed under the protection of Russia, France and England.

Excitable Statesmen.

VIENNA, March 27.—In the lower house of the Hungarian diet a returning officer connected with a recent election scandal appeared in the gallery. The members of the Opposition rose in a body and shouted: "Expel him;" "Remove the scoundrel!" "To the gallows with him!" "To the pillory with him!" at the same time beating upon their desks. The uproar was terrific. The president of the chamber tried to pacify the excited members, but found it impossible, until he compelled the obnoxious officer to withdraw.

Proved a Boomerang.

BERLIN, March 27.—In the lobbies of the reichstag the members have exchanged their experiences at Friedrichsruhe, and commented upon the probable consequences of Saturday's vote. The members of the Center party, especially, are beginning to see that they blundered. They were on the point of being on the friendliest terms with the government and realizing all their desires. Now they are further than ever from their goal.

The Colombian Revolution.

PANAMA, March 27.—The government has issued a bulletin claiming a victory over the rebels at Boyac. It was a costly one, however, for of the 3000 troops under General Reyes, which formed the expedition, 1500 dropped off through fatigue or disease during the march, and of the remaining 1600 who gave battle to the rebels, 700 were killed before the victory rested with the government forces.

His Days Are Numbered.

TOKIO, March 27.—A German physician was sent at the personal request of the mikado to examine Li Hung Chang's wound. After a thorough examination of his patient, the physician is said to have reported confidentially to the mikado that Li Hung Chang must die. Li is 70 years old, and, although a giant physically, his years are against him.

Room For Doubt.

LONDON, March 27.—Nota word has been received in London in regard to the alleged statements by Emperor William at the luncheon at Friedrichsruhe that he was determined to dissolve the reichstag, and that General Count von Waldersee would shortly become chancellor.

Did the "Hold Up" Work With an Express.

THREE ROBBERS FELL BEFORE THE BULLETS.

Trainmen Were Warned of the Intended Raid.

By Associated Press to THE SUN.

GREENWOOD, Ky., March 27.—One of the most daring "hold-ups" of express trains was that attempted at 1.30 a. m., on the south-bound Queen and Crescent train from Cincinnati. Six men tried to do the job and of them one was killed, one died at 4.30, another named Miller is dying and three took to the woods, while the train was only delayed ten minutes and got through to Chattanooga on time.

When the train was stopped the robbers were met with a volley. The officials were all armed, as they had been warned of the hold-up. The safe in the express car which had valuable treasure was untouched.

WORK FOR HOME MISSIONS

CONCLUSIVELY SHOWN BY THE WORK OF THE POLICE COURT.

Agent Drury Tells of an Incident Connected With the Arrest of a Husband and Wife—Several Cases Probated and Other Offenders Sent to Jail.

Two drunks were released.

Thomas Hart, a drunk, was asked if he had anything to say:

"Nop," said Hart quickly.

"Sentence him to jail for eight months" said the court.

"I appeal," exclaimed Hart in a very "tough" tone of voice.

"Hold on, I'll take the eight" he added when told that the Superior court does not sit until June.

Mary A. Cutting, a drunk with a bad record received six months at the workhouse. Her husband, Edward got five months. A queer fact connected with the arrest of the two occurred this morning when Agent Drury went into the house for evidence. He heard a peculiar sound coming from the bed room and going in was surprised to find that during the night a tramp dog had strayed into the house and at the time of the agent's visit was nursing a newly born litter in the only bed in the house.

John F. Sheehy was sent to jail for six months.

Andrew Smith pleaded not guilty of drunkenness and told a story which impressed everyone who heard it. His case was continued until tomorrow.

John O'Neil pleaded not guilty to the charge of being a common drunkard. Officer Hurley said he had seen him drunk eight times since January 12, at all hours of the night. Officer Crowley had seen him drunk six times since Sept. 1. Officer Grinnell had seen him drunk five times since January. Officer Lane had seen him several times intoxicated. Thus he is known to the four Belvidere officers. Then, Officer Clements knew him and had seen him drunk several times. O'Neil testified that he worked in Whittier's Cotton mills. He didn't think he had been in but once in a year. "Why, said the court, "I've seen you in here three or four times within six months." The court remembered the cases and the circumstances connected with them. O'Neil was sent to jail for six months. He appealed. "Mr. Officer call up that appealed case in which the court placed O'Neil on probation. I will see what becomes of these appealed cases." Then O'Neil desired to withdraw his appeal.

ALLEGED SWILL CASES.

Agent Drury Goes Investigating and Takes Joanna Cummings of Chelmsford Into Custody.

As the outcome of numerous complaints Agent Drury of the Humane society has visited several places in Chelmsford, of late to see if swill was being fed to cattle or horses.

He visited Joanna Cummings' place near Parkhurst's hot houses, yesterday, and today he arrested her on a complaint charging that swill had been fed to two horses in her barn.

Agent Drury says that yesterday at the barn he found a bucket of swill in a crib from which a horse was feeding.

The swill was a mixed up mess of fish heads, wood, nails, pieces of glass, hunks of meat, and other choice articles, which at some time or other contributed to a sumptuous meal and the latest style of dress. A copious sample of the mixture is now on ice.

Mr. Drury says that in an adjoining crib was a similar mixture. The full story will probably come out in court.

It is said that Mrs. Cummings owns the farm. She has one daughter.

The case of McNabb vs. Rowland, J. H. Morrison for the plaintiff and Messrs. Pickman & Harvey for the defendant is now on. This action is brought by Duncan, Donald, John and Gilbert McNabb, Andrew Livingstone and Jean Cochrane as administratrix of the estate of Donald Cochrane against Charles T. Rowland to recover damages in the amount of $2000. The case grows out of an attachment made upon the plaintiffs by the defendant in 1882.

THERESA ROWE IS ILL AT THE CITY FARM.

Police Will Inquire Into the Cutting Affair of Yesterday—The Woman Had a Baby Born to Her Yesterday.

The domestic troubles of William A. F. Kelly, arrested yesterday afternoon for alleged assault with a knife on Theresa Rowe, the woman with whom he lived, reveals one of the most shocking cases in the experience of the police.

After the woman made the complaint, and Dr. Porter had dressed the wounds, he ordered her removed to the city farm, as she was on the eve of maternity.

She asked permission to return home and get some clothing and was allowed to do so.

Then in her squalid apartments the supreme moment came and later neighbors found her upon the floor in a helpless condition. A bonny little girl had been ushered into this world of care. The woman and child were later taken to the city farm.

In court today Kelly was held in $1100 until the woman can appear.

GHOST DIDN'T WALK.

It is said he was "shy" $400.

Since playing in Brockton, last week, when, on Wednesday, the ghost forgot to walk as usual, the members of the company have been blaming the treasurer, Mr. Edwards, who, Walsh told them, had disappeared with the receipts.

Mr. Edwards turned up all right in Lowell and explained that he had been ill and took no money with him.

THE MAIL, an erstwhile temperance organ is much exercised lest Little Canada should be deprived of the boon of liquor licenses.

THE WARLIKE young chap or Jap, that fired on Li Hung Chang was inspired by patriotism no doubt but he may also have been inspired by a desire for notoriety. It was a cowardly act and one that greatly embarrasses Japan.

PRESIDENT SULLIVAN of the common council did the square thing in not attending the school board meeting on Monday evening. He had a right to be present and vote but in view of the pending decision in his case, he waived this right.

THE MEYERS voting machine has gone to the bow-ows. In fact the machine seemed to interfere too much in the contests, refusing in some cases to record dozens of votes and in others recording votes on the names of men who were not present at all. Whitestown, N. Y., has just discarded the machine as unreliable.

THE CITIZENS of Lowell whose political rights would be curtailed by the redistricting and charter amending bill are patiently waiting to see what the governor will do with the bill. If he signs it he will have forever forfeited his reputation for justice and a spirit of fair play that holds him above the trickery of unscrupulous partisans.

FOR SCARE heads and cuss words give us the Haverhill Times. One head is carried across the entire front page and alleges that the city "is being run to the devil by a damnable decision." As the devil seems to come in for considerable blame, it is expected that he will have a communication in the next issue taking exceptions to the editor's scintillating platitudinations.

THE ELECTRIC cars to Lawrence occasionally are disturbed by by turbulent characters. The conductors have the authority of special police officers but some of them do not know how to use their authority. "You shut up there or I'll punch your face," was the admonition given to a noisy character a few nights ago. The conductor was the more disorderly of the two.

THE MAIL will disown its fixed policy stated by a contemporary. It is one of those highly moral organs that affect to preach fair play and religious freedom for all men, but which devoutly practise the contrary. The relation of cause and effect must be reversed in the Mail's case. It was the O'Neil assaults of the past few weeks that caused the Mail to foster a spirit of intolerance during the last two years.

BILL HAYES' ASPIRATIONS.

Rep. Hayes must have some political office in view when he shows such a disregard for his business. His place was burned recently but so far as we know his loss may have been recouped by his insurance; but we do not believe that he is insured against the serious loss he is likely to sustain on account of his rabid, fanatical speech in the legislature on the redistricting bill. Mr. Hayes is obviously laying his wires for a senatorial nomination but he will find his popularity gone when next he comes before the people.

THE BEVERLY Times takes Major Merrill to task for his silence in regard to child insurance. It says:

"The evidence before the committee showed that three insurance companies alone that are represented in Boston hold insurance on 1,141,038 children under 10 years of age, and in Massachusetts alone there are 95,498 of this number insured in only two companies."

These figures are astounding but they do not prove anything wrong. The rate of mortality among children insured and those not insured would show whether the allegations of those who oppose such insurance are well founded. Such a record has not been put in evidence at the hearings.

The companies that insure children seldom pay out more than one cent out of every five they receive in death benefits. The charge that parents would neglect their children or what is still worse, murderously hasten their death cap apply only to the most heartless and depraved parents and to but few even of these. In the slums of London, New York or Paris such a deplorable vice might attain large proportions, but never where the physical conditions are much better.

THE EMBERS of rebellion seem to be kindling into flame in the northwest. The system of schools is the same as in the United States, but the Catholics of Manitoba claim that there was an express agreement on entering the federation that the separate school system was to be maintained. On this ground the constitutionality of the new law was questioned and carried to England for decision by the Privy Council. That body decided in favor of the Catholic claims, and the Canadian government must now enforce its order. The Protestants threaten rebellion, but the matter may be settled by ordinary methods.

THE BOSTON Sunday Herald shows so many chronological and other errors in an historical article in Scribner's that the writer, Noah Brooks, might be expected to make a big effort to get off the earth. If one third of the Herald's allegations be correct, they prove him to be one of those able historians who draw upon their imagination for their facts.

CHARLES A. DANA is reported to have said there is no democratic party now. Until Mr. Dana proves his charges against Mr. Noyes of the Washington Star his statements will be taken cum grano salis.

HER SADNESS.

The beautiful billionairess was sad. Of course this sounds like a paradox, for no one can exactly understand how a billionairess can be otherwise than supremely, divinely, everlastingly happy. But the fact remained nevertheless she was miserable.

She sat by the lace curtained window, her rosy, dimpled feet upon a perfumed ottoman embroidered with thousand dollar bens' egg diamonds, impatiently awaiting her maid, who was bringing up from the cuisine an omelet of nightingales' eggs and a mint julep made of the whole Philadelphia mint. This was only her breakfast. You can judge from that what her dinner cost!

"You are disconsolate this morning, mam'zelle?" ventured the maid, removing the society sheet of the morning paper, especially printed for her on watered silk in ottar of roses ink, and replacing it with the delicate repast served in pearl studded golden dishes.

The beautiful billionairess raised her languid eyelids and heaved a deep pachouli scented sigh that fairly packed the million dollar frescoes off the wall. "Yes: I am sad," she moaned. "very sad," and she took a $40,000 sip of the julep as a bracer.

"Why so?" persisted the maid, who always spoke to her mistress in one of 31 earthly or 200 heavenly dialects of Cupid. "Has not the duke been as persistent in his proposal as ever?"

"More so. I have to loan him $8,000,000 a day to get rid of him."

"Aron't your new Worth gowns masterpieces of extravagance?"

"Marvels! That extra 1½ bushels of rubies on my ball gown train retards my waltzing a little, but"—

"Do you long for Paris and fear the rough voyage?"

"Oh, dear no! I've arranged with the Standard Oil company to pour 10,000,000 barrels of oil per hour into the ocean during the time I am crossing to grease the track, you know"—

"What, then, can be the matter which so oppresses you?"

"Only to think," replied the beautiful billionairess, taking up the watered silk newspaper once more, "for five years I have been reported engaged to 33 men, on an average weekly, including every eligible bachelor or widower of both hemispheres, from a Zulu chief to the czar of Russia. This morning—oh, this morning, I am miserable! I have toiled through 69 columns of solid nonpareil and nary a single new engagement. It is awful!"

"Ah, mam'zello, you cannot think that your popularity is on the wane. That is impossible!"

"Alas, I fear it—either that or else the society editors have died at their posts in faithful efforts to marry me off."

"No; I have it. Eureka!"

"They have exhausted the whole international directory!"

"Bravo!" exclaimed the other, springing to her feet. "Then I must consider their silence as the greatest compliment of my life. Marie, you are a petticoat Daniel. Your salary is raised $2,000 a minute. Swear that you will never leave me. I shall marry his dukeiets, get you to doctor me up a divorce, and we will be the most popular women in the world. Go below and order us two golden bucks made of limburger cheese and a jullibird's egg, and four fingers each of B. C. 450 Cyprian from the wine cellars of Pericles, worth $8,000 a drop, and we'll toast society editors in blocks of five. Ah, you are a jewel, Marie, a veritable jewel!"—New York World.

A Logical Inebriate.

"Are you drunk?"

"You bet."

"Then move off from here."

"Are you drunk?" queried the inebriate.

"No, I am sober," was the indignant response.

"Then you can move off from here a blamed sight easier than I can."—Texas Siftings.

SUNBEAMS.

After the Galop.

"Er—I—cr—excuse me; but, I say, you have your foot through one of my cuffs. Do you happen to be sitting on the other?"

Discouraged.

Farmer Oatcake, who with his good wife, Mandy, is on a brief visit to a daughter-in-law in Buffalo, looked over the newspapers on Saturday in an endeavor to find a church service on the following day which he might attend, with hope of securing spiritual satisfaction. He soon gleaned that the following Scriptural subjects would be discussed from various city pulpits:

"Is the Trilby Craze Dying Out?"

"Fitzsimmons Versus Corbett."

"How the Pastor Spends His Vacation."

"Should Our Daughters Marry Foreign Noblemen?"

"High Sleeves and Theater Hats."

"The Gold Brick Saloon."

"Canal Street on Saturday Night."

"Wordsworth and the Lake School of Poetry."

"The Fifty-third Congress."

"Rights of Motormen."

Farmer Oatcake gave it up after awhile and laid down the paper, saying, with a sigh, "Laws sakes, Mandy, I do believe that the gospel and the scheme of salvation have gone out of fashion."—Buffalo Express.

Disintegration of Mind.

The heathen in his blindness declined the proffered garment.

"No," he answered firmly, "no."

The avant courier of civilization smiled as he watched the savage disappear in the jungle.

"Wait," he muttered. "Wait till he has smoked cigarettes a month longer."

Saying which, he laid the pink shirt carefully and confidently away, as for a future occasion.—Detroit Tribune.

What He Wished.

"Father was speaking of you yesterday," said Ethel to Cholly Stalate.

"What did he say?"

"He said he'd rather have you go home late than early."

"Er—why—did he really say that?"

"Yes. He said it would be a great relief if you'd leave late in the evening instead of early in the morning."—Washington Star.

How Scrimple Would Be of Value.

"Mr. Scrimple," said the magnate to the rising young lawyer, "I want to make use of your valuable services."

"Very well, sir," said Scrimple as he gasped at the joyous prospect of a first brief. "What can I do for you?"

"A firm which competes with my house," replied the magnate firmly, "is about to bring a damage suit against me, and I want you to get them to engage you as their attorney."—Chicago Record.

AMBITIOUS WOMEN

MAKE HEROES OF MEN.

She Will Brave Anything for the Man She Loves.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

When an ambitious woman loves a man she will spur him to heroic efforts. She will dare with him the rigors of the frozen North, and encourage him in daring dangers almost unsurmountable.

Women are by nature ambitious according to their physical and mental strength. Hope and ambition come with perfect health, but vanish before sickness and despair.

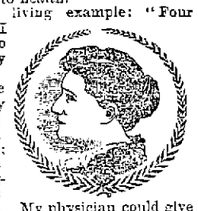

American women are, unfortunately, particularly subject to those painful female diseases that are the cause of so much hopelessness and misery.

Could all women realize the undeniable fact that they suffer unnecessarily, how much brighter life would be!

Lydia E. Pinkham devoted her life to the study of female diseases and their cause; and she discovered in the Vegetable Compound an absolute remedy. It succeeds in removing the cause of the trouble.

Women who rely more upon their own natural common-sense, rather than on the theories of their physicians, write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., and are soon restored to health.

Here is a living example: "Four months ago I was unable to stand on my feet. I had falling of the womb, kidney trouble, and inflammation of the bladder; the backache and bearing-down pains were dreadful. No relief.

My physician could give me no relief. A friend said, try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Well, I did. Oh, if every suffering woman would do the same, they would be cured, cured absolutely and entirely, as I am!" MRS. WM. M. MOREY, 20 Seymour St., Pittsfield, Mass.

GERMAN KAISER

Exchange Courtesies With the Iron Duke.

HONORS HEAPED UPON GRAND OLD MAN

In Recognition of His Services to His Country.

FRIEDRICHSRUHE, March 27.—Emperor William, at the head of a detachment of cavalry, infantry and artillery, with colors flying and bands playing, paid his respects to Prince Bismarck yesterday, and presented him with a sword of honor in behalf of the army, and congratulated him upon nearing the 80th anniversary of his birth.

The ceremonies attending the visit of the emperor to the great chancellor, though marred by showers of rain, were brilliant and imposing.

When the emperor arrived at the point of assemblage of the troops from Aumuhle railroad station, he found drawn up ready for his inspection a squadron of the Halberstad: Cuirassiers, a regiment of infantry and a squadron of hussars, all with colors flying, with their regimental bands in attendance, and a battery of the Holstein artillery regiment.

With the emperor at its head, this force was marched to an open space in Prince Bismarck's park, and upon arrival there the troops were deployed in parade order.

Owing to the dense foliage of the trees in the park and neighborhood the troops were not seen until they actually emerged upon the parade ground.

The crown prince and his suite had, in the meantime, walked to the parade ground, and as the emperor appeared on one side Prince Bismarck's carriage emerged upon the ground from the other side. The prince wore the uniform of the Halberstadt Cuirassiers.

The Emperor's Greeting.

When the emperor caught sight of the prince he spurred his horse forward, and rode at a fast canter to the carriage of the veteran statesman and soldier and shook hands with him. The emperor then presented the crown prince and his suite to Prince Bismarck. The latter took the young prince into his carriage, and, with the emperor riding behind it, and General von Waldersee walking beside it, the carriage was driven down the lines of soldiers, the officers saluting, the troops presenting arms and the bands playing patriotic airs, as the prince and emperor passed.

The prince's carriage was then driven to the middle of the parade grounds, where Prince Bismarck alighted. His majesty took up a position in front of the troops, delivered an address of congratulation to the prince, and, in the name of the army, presented him with a sword of honor of antique design, richly embossed and inlaid with gold.

During the course of his remarks the emperor said, referring to the presence of the cuirassiers, that he handed him the sword in recognition of his deeds, adding: "I could not have found a better present than a sword, whether as the weapon of the ancient Germans or as a symbol of never-failing resource, and upon it are engraved the united arms of the reichstag.

"May your serene highness look upon this as a token of gratitude for deeds recorded in history, which were brought to a conclusion 25 years ago. Let us, comrades, shout hurrah for his serene highness, Prince Bismarck, Duke of Lauenberg!"

An Affecting Scene.

Prince Bismarck, who was deeply moved, then reseated himself in his carriage, and the emperor ordered the troops to march past the prince's carriage, and the great chancellor returned the salutes of the troops with evident pleasure. At the end of this ceremony Prince Bismarck thanked the emperor for his kindness and courtesy and kissed his majesty's hand.

After this the prince returned to the castle, stood on the terrace, and the emperor led the cuirassiers past the front of the castle and back again.

The emperor afterward entered the schloss and lunched with Prince Bismarck, taking this occasion to present his host with a seal from the writing of his grandfather, Emperor William I.

During the luncheon the cuirassiers mounted guard outside the castle and the artillery remained as a guard of honor on parade ground. From that spot, when the signal was given that the emperor proposed the health of Prince Bismarck, the artillery fired a salute.

After the review, Prince Bismarck was joined by his sons, Count Herbert and Count William, and by Count and Countess Rantzau, Dr. Schweninger and others of the household who witnessed the presentation.

The emperor in his speech spoke loudly and clearly, and when he handed the sword of honor to Prince Bismarck, the latter threw aside his cloak and stood "attention" in the rain. It was then seen that he wore the broad yellow ribbon of the Order of the Black Eagle.

When the emperor called for cheers for Prince Bismarck at the conclusion of the ceremonies, it was responded to unanimously by the troops and people.

The imperial train started from here on its return to Berlin at 3:27 p. m. At the last moment Prince Bismarck appeared on the platform in order to take final leave of the emperor, and cheers were raised and continued long after the prince re-entered the castle.

INEBRIETY OF VARIOUS KINDS AND ITS EFFECTS.

In the usual acceptation of the term intoxication, or drunkenness, or inebriety—for they all mean practically the same thing—is referred to the excessive use of alcoholic beverages in one form or another. Norman Kerr, the highest English authority on the subject, has pointed out, however, that there are a great many things besides alcohol which produce intoxication, and that alcoholic inebriety is not so dangerous or deleterious in its effects as some other kinds of intoxication.

Dr. Kerr enumerates among the things that "make drunk come," as the Indian expresses it, ether, cocaine, eau de cologne, iodine, opium, hasheesh, paraffin, kerosene and even such seemingly innocuous substances as cod liver oil and castor oil. It would seem almost incredible that there could be such a thing as kerosene inebriety or cod liver oil intoxication, but the records of scientific research, as set forth by Dr. Kerr, are not to be disputed.

The fact seems to be that overindulgence in any one of the numerous substances of a certain class begets a cumulative appetite, and that this is accompanied in time by functional derangement, and, worse still, by a slackening and weakening of moral fiber. Tea, coffee and tobacco, while less injurious to most people than alcohol or opium or ether, serve to illustrate the familiar saying that the appetite grows by what it feeds on. The tobacco habit, the coffee habit, the tea habit, may grow on one until what was once a want becomes an actual need, and each is as necessary to the comfort if not the health of the devotee as food itself, remarks the San Francisco Chronicle.

Vitality of the Brain and Heart.

There are two parts of the human organism, Dr. Balfour tells us, which if wisely used "largely escape senile failure." These two are the brain and the heart. Persons who think have often wondered why brain workers, great statesmen and others, should continue to work with almost unimpaired mental activity and energy up to a period when most of the organs and functions of the body are in a condition of advanced senile decay. There is a physiological reason for this, and Dr. Balfour tells us what it is. The normal brain, he affirms, "remains vigorous to the last, and that "because its nutrition is especially provided for." Who is there among those who have reached or passed middle age that will not be rejoiced to find such admirable physiological warrant for the belief that the brain may continue to work and even to improve almost to the very last hour of life? As in the case of the brain, there seems to be excellent physiological warrant for the conclusion that the aged heart succeeds to, at any rate, a relative increase of strength as time goes on.

Damp Linen.

Hall's Journal of Health affirms that damp linen is sufficient to account for frequent colds, consumption and premature death of a whole family, and where the mischief, not having taken that direction, is developed in the form of a rheumatism, which, once set in from that cause, is generally incurable. All body linen shortly before putting on should be made dry by a good fire. Whenever that is impossible, it is a good plan to put the linen between the blankets of your bed all night in a position to get plenty of heat. Those who have experienced no signal evidence of the mischief of damp linen are apt to be careless on the subject, but the carelessness will inevitably entail its punishment, which is likely to accumulate insidiously until it is too late.

A Sure Cure For Snoring.

Six drops of olive oil to a pinch of mustard taken just before getting into bed. The function of the oil is that of a lubricant to the larynx, while the mustard acts as a counter irritant. The cure was discovered by the late Dr. O'Dowd of Kilkenny and has proved so effectual that no native of that county ever snores, at least so says the Philadelphia Times.

THE MODEL HOSTESS.

With Imperturbable Calm and Ready Tact She Makes Everything a Success.

A woman may possess wealth untold. She may have the kindest of hearts and the brightest of minds, but unless she has absolute control of her feelings there will be some time in her career as hostess that she will display annoyance or flurry, and the contagion spreading to her guests will cause an otherwise successful entertainment to die out in undisguised failure.

A model hostess must to all appearances be made of stone so far as disagreeable happenings are concerned. Even though a guest or careless waiter inadvertently breaks a bit of china which can never be replaced, she must smile on as though the loss of the entire set would but emphasize the pleasure of the evening. Her well bred calm inspires her guests with a feeling of confidence, and, though in her heart she may be very dubious about certain important details of her dinner or dance, if she does not show her anxiety everything will pass off to a happy conclusion.

A flurried hostess or nervous host, whose countenance but ill conceals the worry felt, can do more toward making the guests uncomfortable than if the soup were served stone cold and the salad dressing were ruined by a too bountiful quantity of vinegar. An imperturbable calm and a ready tact are the two important factors in the making of a model hostess. Secure these by hook or crook, and you need never fear for the success of any of your entertainments, remarks an exchange.

Napkin Etiquette.

There is a great deal of uncertainty as to whether it is or is not the thing to fold the napkin after a formal meal. If one is staying in the house and knows that napkin rings are in use, it seems a reflection upon that custom to fling the napkin down in an untidy heap. An elegantly appointed table deserves better treatment even at the end of a meal, than those disheveled piles of drapery. Therefore it always seems fittest to simply half fold the napkin and not attract attention to it either by one obtrusive habit or the other.

The Tie Usually Disappears Also.

"I wonder who started that slang about getting it in the neck!" asked the curious boarder.

"Some man whose wife bought him a necktie at a bargain sale likely," said the cheerful idiot, and then the conversation languished while the pie disappeared.—Indianapolis Journal.

THURSTON TO GO

Notifies State Department of His Intention.

HE KNOWS NOTHING OF A RECALL.

Will Result in Trouble With Little Hawaii.

WASHINGTON, March 27. — Minister Thurston, in regard to his intended departure for Honolulu, yesterday sent a formal notification of the fact to the state department, naming Frank Hastings, secretary of the legation, as charge d'affaires during his absence. This is in the regular order of diplomatic procedure under the circumstances. Mr. Thurston said that he had heard nothing regarding his recall, if one is desired.

The departure of Mr. Thurston from the United States without being recalled by his government will leave the relations between this government and Hawaii in a peculiar condition. It cannot be said that there is a rupture of diplomatic relations, but they will certainly be severely strained.

It is customary in ordinary cases where a minister leaves the United States permanently for him to present his letters of recall to the president and take his leave. But, as Mr. Thurston has not been recalled, he cannot do this.

A Parallel Case.

But in the celebrated Cazeczy case, in which the Russian government had been requested to recall its objectionable minister, and the latter, before his government had passed upon the request, notified the department of state that he proposed to leave the United States on leave of absence.

Secretary Fish strongly objected and insisted that the United States would accept nothing less than the minister's recall. In the end Mr. Cazeczy did leave the United States without being recalled, just as Mr. Thurston is about to do, turning over the business to a charge d'affaires, and our government accepted the situation and expressed itself as satisfied.

It was a long time before another minister came from Russia to Washington, and the similarity in the other features of the two incidents leads to the supposition that the parallel may be carried farther, and that Mr. Hastings, the Hawaiian charge d'affaires, may be left here in that position for many months.

From a diplomatic point of view this cannot be regarded as a complete rupture of relations, but such a situation, similar again to that in which the Italian legation was left by the withdrawal of Baron Fava four years ago, is generally regarded as unsatisfactory and as calculated to make Mr. Willis' position as United States minister at Honolulu untenable.

Digging Down Pretty Deep.

Deputy Fire Marshal Shaw of the Boston district came here yesterday to hold an inquest into the Huntington hall fire. The circumstances are very suspicious and a very strict inquiry is being made into them with the hope of getting clues. It is said that the inquiry has been so close that the name of every person who went into the ante rooms and stage on the night of the A. P. A., meeting, when an alleged ex-Romanist lectured, is known. It will be remembered that a fire was discovered on the stage late that night, and the next morning two attempts were made to fire the building. It is believed that some one got into the hall after the meeting to set the fire.

The greatest jump in the Association will be from Fitchburg to Salem, 66 miles; while the greatest jump the league clubs will make will be over 300 miles.

The population of the Association cities is greater than that of the league cities by 2000.

It is said that Walter Burnham had a hand in the move to organize the American association last season, and for that reason the board of arbitration was not in favor of giving the manager much of a show for his "white alley" in the Lowell matter.—Globe.

IN FIGHTING MOOD

Manitoba Solons on the School Question.

GREENWAY MEN BLAME THE CATHOLIC CLERGY

For Forcing the Matter to An Issue.

WINNIPEG, March 27.—The first step in the renewed fight over the parochial schools in Manitoba began in the legislature yesterday afternoon, when the full message was presented from the Dominion government at Ottawa, ordering the Manitoba legislature to give the Catholics their rights as they existed before the abolition of the parochial schools in 1890.

The reading of the Ottawa message occupied over an hour, and all verbiage removed, it amounts to the request as above stated. Mr. Martin, a French Catholic member of the legislature, urged that the government should take immediate action, but Premier Greenway protested, saying that the message should be printed in order that all members might know what they were dealing with. Here the matter rested.

Meanwhile the situation grows more complicated. The Catholics and their friends say that Greenway and his followers—if they reject the order from Ottawa—are rejecting a document ordered and signed by the queen, and such an act would be equivalent to open rebellion.

They say they cannot conceive how the Dominion government could do otherwise than make the formal request they have made, as they are bound to take immediate action upon the decision of the highest court, and see that the grievances of her majesty's subjects of the Roman Catholic faith in Manitoba received redress at the earliest possible moment.

The Greenway Side.

The Greenway government contends, on the other hand, that the present school law is satisfactory to many Catholics if it were not for the agitation by the priests of the church. They say that if Manitoba is coerced into recreating a dual system, dualism, both in language and education, will be extended to the territories as well, and thus there would be perpetuated in the west the evils which have caused dissatisfaction and stagnation in the province.

Among the members of the government side it seems to be a matter of opinion that the remedial order will be disposed of during the coming week and without any great amount of speaking. Premier Greenway, speaking on the matter, said the length of the discussion would depend upon the number of individual members who wanted to talk. Premier Greenway denies that he will compromise the matter by introducing a bill making the schools entirely secular.

Officials Are Worried.

A dispatch from Ottawa states that the news that Premier Greenway has declared that "the governor general's order will be rejected in its entirety" (meaning the order to grant remedial legislation to the Catholics in matters of separate schools), while not unexpected, has created great excitement in official circles. It is admitted that the situation is pregnant with critical possibilities, and that much depends upon the action of the Dominion government.

It is, of course, possible that the Manitoba legislature may shelve the question for a year, in which event the present Dominion government would be relieved of the necessity of action for that length of time, and the federal parliament has no jurisdiction till the government of the province acts, or refuses to act, on the remedial order. But this seems hardly likely to happen, judging from the reports of the feeling among the majority of the people of Manitoba.

Five Years In Prison.

BOSTON, March 27.—Judge Nelson sentenced Major John McDonough, formerly assistant superintendent of the delivery department of the Boston postoffice, to five years in the state prison, for the embezzlement of a letter on Feb. 2 last. This is the full penalty provided by law. McDonough was employed at the Boston postoffice for 31 years. He served throughout the war of the rebellion, coming out a major. He was prominent in Grand Army circles. He is 56 years of age.

TRUE TO HER FAITH.

Massachusetts Will Uphold the Principles For Which She Fought.

BOSTON, March 27.—The Republican members of the legislature held a banquet at the American House last evening. The first speaker was Governor Greenhalge. After earnestly exhorting the legislators to be mindful of the responsibility and the dignity of their office, he adverted to the recent Tecmoh incident.

"Massachusetts has great work to perform," he said. "She has more than ordinary responsibility committed to her. You remember the great obligation you took upon yourselves when you swore to support the constitution and land of the state, to bear faith and allegiance to the constitution of your state and of the constitution of the United States. The constitution of the United States comprehends among its principles the 13th, 14th and 15th amendments.

"Massachusetts ratified with a full heart and with clear purpose these amendments. The people are not going to have them clouded or wiped out today. And when Massachusetts sends representatives beyond her borders, she asks not for social amenities; she has no concern with social prejudices; she simply says, in the broad principles of the United States: 'We send out our representatives, and while not asking anything of either state or individual, we require the spirit of the constitution shall glow and live from the gulf to Canada, from east to west.'

"The commonwealth has no concern with the unofficial utterances of any official, particularly if they come in an ex post facto way; but I say Massachusetts will never ask more than the spirit of her institutions, or the spirit of that great charter which we call the constitution of the United States, demands. Massachusetts will accept no less."

Great Fire Raging.

MILWAUKEE, March 27.—Fire broke out in the building occupied by the A. F. Transfer Furniture company and Landauer & Co., dry goods. Soon the wall fell with a big crash. The clothing house of Barling & Whitbold also caught fire and was destroyed. The flames jumped across Grand avenue and set a row of wooden tenement houses on fire. The firemen and policemen with difficulty saved the occupants. The heat was so intense that the building of the Young Men's Christian association on the other side of Fourth street caught fire, as did the library building. The dry goods house of James Morgan & Co., corner of Third street and Grand avenue, was damaged by water. The total loss will be $1,000,000.

Not Ready to Strike.

PROVIDENCE, March 27.—The weavers of the Providence and the National worsted mills yesterday discussed their grievances. No action was taken, however, as it was deemed advisable to await the action of the district council of the Textile Workers' association. At the Campbell mills the dissatisfied weavers asked for an advance of 3 mills a shuttle extra on all over four, and the demand was granted and the weavers will not strike.

Twins In a Bundle.

BOSTON, March 27.—A boy employed at a market, while driving through Pine street yesterday, saw a queer looking bundle on the sidewalk. He picked up the mysterious package and took it to station 4, where the bundle was opened and found to contain two infants. The infants had been born only a few hours and were stillbirths.

TODAY WE BEGIN SELLING

WOMEN'S SHIRT WAISTS FOR THE SPRING OF '95.

About the time snow began falling last November, we made contracts with the best waist manufacturers in this country, and the orders were big enough to make an impression in the market; the result—more waists came here within a few weeks than ever came to one house in Lowell.

Come today if you can, and see the biggest display of Shirt waists ever shown in this city.

You know that there's a difference in shirt waists. It has grown to be a big business and lots of people have started cutting cloth into what they think are waists, when really it requires years of experience to make waists right. A laundered waist, poorly made, is one of the meanest articles of clothing.

Our manufacturers allowed no skimping or slighting, no haphazard styles.

The prices are extremely reasonable, more so when you think of the extra materials required for the big sleeves.

The committee on taxation reported a new draft of a bill to provide for taxing property of residents of this state held by foreign trustees. Lowell's water supply bill was engrossed in the house. THE LEXOW committee is now accused by Dr. Parkhurst of being in league with rascals. Thus doctors differ.

THE MAIL, an erstwhile temperance organ is much exercised lest Little Canada should be deprived of the boon of liquor licenses.

THE WARLIKE young chap or Jap. that fired on Li Hung Chang was inspired by patriotism no doubt but he may also have been inspired by a desire for notoriety. It was a cowardly act and one that greatly embarrasses Japan.

PRESIDENT SULLIVAN of the common council did the square thing in not attending the school board meeting on Monday evening. He had a right to be present and vote but in view of the pending decision in his case, he waived this right.

THE MEYERS voting machine has gone to the bow-ows. In fact the machine seemed to interfere too much in the contests, refusing in some cases to record dozens of votes and in others recording votes on the names of men who were not present at all. Whitestown, N. Y., has just discarded the machine as unreliable.

THE CITIZENS of Lowell whose political rights would be curtailed by the redistricting and charter amending bill are patiently waiting to see what the governor will do with the bill. If he signs it he will have forever forfeited his reputation for justice and a spirit of fair play that holds him above the trickery of unscrupulous partisans.

FOR SCARE heads and cuss words give us the Haverhill Times. One head is carried across the entire front page and alleges that the city "is being run to the devil by a damnable decision." As the devil seems to come in for considerable blame, it is expected that he will have a communication in the next issue taking exceptions to the editor's scintillating platitudinations.

THE ELECTRIC cars to Lawrence occasionally are disturbed by by turbulent characters. The conductors have the authority of special police officers but some of them do not know how to use their authority. "You shut up there or I'll punch your face," was the admonition given to a noisy character a few nights ago. The conductor was the more disorderly of the two.

THE MAIL will disown its fixed policy stated by a contemporary. It is one of those highly moral organs that affect to preach fair play and religious freedom for all men, but which devoutly practise the contrary. The relation of cause and effect must be reversed in the Mail's case. It was the O'Neil assaults of the past few weeks that caused the Mail to foster a spirit of intolerance during the last two years.

BILL HAYES' ASPIRATIONS.

Rep. Hayes must have some political office in view when he shows such a disregard for his business. His place was burned recently but so far as we know his loss may have been recouped by his insurance: but we do not believe that he is insured against the serious loss he is likely to sustain on account of his rabid, fanatical speech in the legislature on the redistricting bill. Mr. Hayes is obviously laying his wires for a senatorial nomination but he will find his popularity gone when next he comes before the people.

THE BEVERLY Times takes Major Merrill to task for his silence in regard to child insurance. It says:

"The evidence before the committee showed that three insurance companies alone that are represented in Boston hold insurance on 1,141,098 children under 10 years of age, and in Massachusetts alone there are 95,468 of this number insured in only two companies."

These figures are astounding but they do not prove anything wrong. The rate of mortality among children insured and those not insured would show whether the allegations of those who oppose such insurance are well founded. Such a record has not been put in evidence at the hearings.

The companies that insure children seldom pay out more than one cent out of every five they receive in death benefits. The charge that parents would neglect their children or what is still worse, murderously hasten their death can apply only to the most heartless and depraved parents and to but few even of these. In the slums of London, New York or Paris such a deplorable vice might attain large proportions, but never where the physical conditions are much better.

THE EMBERS of rebellion seem to be kindling into flame in the northwest. The system of schools is the same as in the United States, but the Catholics of Manitoba claim that there was an express agreement on entering the federation that the separate school system was to be maintained. On this ground the constitutionality of the new law was questioned and carried to England for decision by the Privy Council. That body decided in favor of the Catholic claims, and the Canadian government must now enforce its order. The Protestants threaten rebellion, but the matter may be settled by ordinary methods.

THE BOSTON Sunday Herald shows so many chronological and other errors in an historical article in Scribner's that the writer, Noah Brooks, might be expected to make a big effort to get off the earth. If one third of the Herald's allegations be correct, they prove him to be one of those able historians who draw upon their imagination for their facts.

CHARLES A. DANA is reported to have said there is no democratic party now. Until Mr. Dana proves his charges against Mr. Noyes of the Washington Star his statements will be taken cum grano salis.

HER SADNESS.

The beautiful billionairess was sad. Of course this sounds like a paradox, for no one can exactly understand how a billionairess can be otherwise than supremely, divinely, everlastingly happy. But the fact remained nevertheless she was miserable.

She sat by the lace curtained window, her rosy, dimpled feet upon a perfumed ottoman embroidered with thousand dollar hens' egg diamonds, impatiently awaiting her maid, who was bringing up from the cuisine an omelet of nightingales' eggs and a mint julep made of the whole Philadelphia mint. This was only her breakfast. You can judge from that what her dinner cost!

"You are disconsolate this morning, mam'zelle!" ventured the maid, removing the society sheet of the morning paper, especially printed for her on watered silk in attar of roses ink, and replacing it with the delicate repast served in pearl studded golden dishes.

The beautiful billionairess raised her languid eyelids and heaved a deep pachouli scented sigh that fairly peeled the million dollar frescoes off the wall. "Yes; I am sad," she moaned, "very sad," and she took a $40,000 sip of the julep as a bracer.

"Why so?" persisted the maid, who always spoke to her mistress in one of 81 earthly or 200 heavenly dialects of Cupid. "Has not the duke been as persistent in his proposal as ever?"

"More so. I have to loan him $3,000,000 a day to get rid of him."

"Aren't your new Worth gowns masterpieces of extravagance?"

"Marvels! That extra 1½ bushels of rubies on my ball gown train retards my waltzing a little, but"—

"Do you long for Paris and fear the rough voyage?"

"Oh, dear no! I've arranged with the Standard Oil company to pour 10,000,000 barrels of oil per hour into the ocean during the time I am crossing to grease the track, you know"—

"What, then, can be the matter which so oppresses you?"

"Only to think," replied the beautiful billionairess, taking up the watered silk newspaper once more, "for five years I have been reported engaged to 83 men, on an average weekly, including every eligible bachelor or widower of both hemispheres, from a Zulu chief to the czar of Russia. This morning—oh, this morning, I am miserable! I have toiled through 69 columns of solid nonpareil and nary a single new engagement. It is awful!"

"Ah, mam'zelle, you cannot think that your popularity is on the wane. That is impossible!"

"Alas, I fear it—either that or else the society editors have died at their posts in faithful efforts to marry me off."

"No; I have it. Eureka!"

"They have exhausted the whole international directory!"

"Bravo!" exclaimed the other, springing to her feet. "Then I must consider their silence as the greatest compliment of my life. Marie, you are a petticoat Daniel. Your salary is raised $2,000 a minute. Swear that you will never leave me. I shall marry his dukelets, get you to doctor me up a divorce, and we will be the most popular women in the world. Go below and order us two golden bucks made of limberger cheese and a jailbird's egg, and four fingers each of B. C. 460 Cyprian from the wine cellars of Pericles, worth $6,000 a drop, and we'll toast society editors in blocks of five. Ah, you are a jewel, Marie, a veritable jewel!"—New York World.

A Logical Inebriate.

"Are you drunk?"

"You bet."

"Then move off from here."

"Are you drunk?" queried the inebriate.

"No, I am sober," was the indignant response.

"Then you can move off from here a blamed sight easier than I can."—Texas Siftings.

After the Galop.

"Er—I—er—excuse me; but, I say, you have your foot through one of my cuffs. Do you happen to be sitting on the other?"

Discouraged.

Farmer Oatcake, who with his good wife, Mandy, is on a brief visit to a daughter-in-law in Buffalo, looked over the newspapers on Saturday in an endeavor to find a church service on the following day which he might attend, with hope of securing spiritual satisfaction. He soon gleaned that the following Scriptural subjects would be discussed from various city pulpits:

"Is the Trilby Craze Dying Out?"

"Fitzsimmons Versus Corbett."

"How the Pastor Spends His Vacation."

"Should Our Daughters Marry Foreign Noblemen?"

"High Sleeves and Theater Hats."

"The Gold Brick Saloon."

"Canal Street on Saturday Night."

"Wordsworth and the Lake School of Poetry."

"The Fifty-third Congress."

"Rights of Motormen."

Farmer Oatcake gave it up after awhile and laid down the paper, saying, with a sigh, "Laws sakes, Mandy, I do believe that the gospel and the scheme of salvation have gone out of fashion."—Buffalo Express.

Disintegration of Mind.

"No," he answered firmly, "no."

The avant courier of civilization smiled as he watched the savage disappear in the jungle.

"Wait," he muttered. "Wait till he has smoked cigarettes a month longer."

Saying which, he laid the pink shirt carefully and confidently away, as for a future occasion.—Detroit Tribune.

What He Wished.

"Father was speaking of you yesterday," said Ethel to Cholly Stalate.

"What did he say?"

"He said he'd rather have you go home late than early."

"Er—why—did he really say that?"

"Yes. He said it would be a great relief if you'd leave late in the evening instead of early in the morning."—Washington Star.

How Scrimple Would Be of Value.

"Mr. Scrimple," said the magnate to the rising young lawyer, "I want to make use of your valuable services."

"Very well, sir," said Scrimple as he gasped at the joyous prospect of a first brief. "What can I do for you?"

"A firm which competes with my house," replied the magnate firmly, "is about to bring a damage suit against me, and I want you to get them to engage you as their attorney."—Chicago Record.

People Who Weigh and Compare

Know and get the best. Cottolene, the new vegetable shortening, has won a wide and wonderful popularity. At its introduction it was submitted to expert chemists, prominent physicians and famous cooks. All of these pronounced a natural, healthful and acceptable food-product, better than lard for every cooking purpose.

The success of Cottolene is now a matter of history. Will you share in the better food and better health for which it stands, by using it in your home?

Avoid imitations—countless—worthless. Stick to COTTOLENE.

AMBITIOUS WOMEN

MAKE HEROES OF MEN.

She Will Brave Anything for the Man She Loves.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

When an ambitious woman loves a man she will spur him to heroic efforts. She will dare with him the rigors of the frozen North, and encourage him in daring dangers almost unsurmountable.

Women are by nature ambitious according to their physical and mental strength. Hope and ambition come with perfect health, but vanish before sickness and despair.

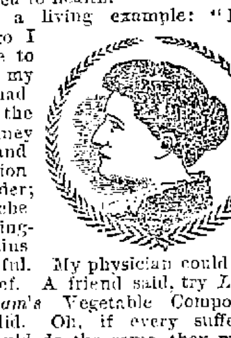

American women are, unfortunately, particularly subject to those painful female diseases that are the cause of so much hopelessness and misery.

Lydia E. Pinkham devoted her life to the study of female diseases and, their cause; and she discovered in the Vegetable Compound an absolute remedy. It succeeds in removing the cause of the trouble.

Women who rely more upon their own natural common-sense, rather than on the theories of their physicians, write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., and are soon restored to health.

Here is a living example: "Four months ago I was unable to stand on my feet. I had falling of the womb, kidney trouble, and inflammation of the bladder; the backache and bearing-down pains were dreadful. My physician could give me no relief. A friend said, try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Well, I did. Oh, if every suffering woman would do the same, they would be cured, cured absolutely and entirely, as I am!"—MRS. WM. M. MOREY, 20 Seymour St., Pittsfield, Mass.

GERMAN KAISER

Exchange Courtesies With the Iron Duke.

HONORS HEAPED UPON GRAND OLD MAN

In Recognition of His Services to His Country.

FRIEDRICHSRUHE, March 27.—Emperor William, as the head of a detachment of cavalry, infantry and artillery, with colors flying and bands playing, paid his respects to Prince Bismarck yesterday, and presented him with a sword of honor in behalf of the army, and congratulated him upon nearing the 80th anniversary of his birth.

The ceremonies attending the visit of the emperor to the great chancellor, though marred by showers of rain, were brilliant and imposing.

When the emperor arrived at the point of assemblage of the troops from Aumuhle railroad station, he found drawn up ready for his inspection a squadron of the Halberstadt Cuirassiers, a regiment of infantry and a squadron of hussars, all with colors flying, with their regimental bands in attendance, and a battery of the Holstein artillery regiment.

With the emperor at its head, this force was marched to an open space in Prince Bismarck's park, and upon arrival there the troops were deployed in parade order.

Owing to the dense foliage of the trees in the park and neighborhood the troops were not seen until they actually emerged upon the parade ground.

The crown prince and his suite had, in the meantime, walked to the parade ground, and as the emperor appeared on one side Prince Bismarck's carriage emerged upon the ground from the other side. The prince wore the uniform of the Halberstadt Cuirassiers.

The Emperor's Greeting.

When the emperor caught sight of the prince he spurred his horse forward, and rode at a fast canter to the carriage of the veteran statesman and soldier and shook hands with him. The emperor then presented the crown prince and his suite to Prince Bismarck. The latter took the young prince into his carriage, and, with the emperor riding behind it, and General von Waldersee walking beside it, the carriage was driven down the lines of soldiers, the officers saluting, the troops presenting arms and the bands playing patriotic airs, as the prince and emperor passed.

The prince's carriage was then driven to the middle of the parade grounds, where Prince Bismarck alighted. His majesty took up a position in front of the troops, delivered an address of congratulation to the prince, and, in the name of the army, presented him with a sword of honor of antique design, richly embossed and inlaid with gold.

During the course of his remarks the emperor said, referring to the presence of the cuirassiers, that he handed him the sword in recognition of his deeds, adding: "I could not have found a better present than a sword, whether as the weapon of the ancient Germans or as a symbol of never-failing resource, and upon it are engraved the united arms of the reichstag.

"May your serene highness look upon this as a token of gratitude for deeds recorded in history, which were brought to a conclusion 25 years ago. Let us, comrades, shout hurrah for his serene highness, Prince Bismarck, Duke of Lauenberg!"

An Affecting Scene.

Prince Bismarck, who was deeply moved, then reseated himself in his carriage, and the emperor ordered the troops to march past the prince's carriage, and the great chancellor returned the salutes of the troops with evident pleasure. At the end of this ceremony Prince Bismarck thanked the emperor for his kindness and courtesy and kissed his majesty's hand.

After this the prince returned to the castle, stood on the terrace, and the emperor led the cuirassiers past the front of the castle and back again.

The emperor afterward entered the schloss and lunched with Prince Bismarck, taking this occasion to present his host with a seal from the writing of his grandfather, Emperor William I.

During the luncheon the cuirassiers mounted guard outside the castle and the artillery remained as a guard of honor on parade ground. From that spot, when the signal was given that the emperor proposed the health of Prince Bismarck, the artillery fired a salute.

After the review, Prince Bismarck was joined by his sons, Count Herbert and Count William, and by Count and Countess Rantzau, Dr. Schweninger and others of the household who witnessed the presentation.

The emperor in his speech spoke loudly and clearly, and when he handed the sword of honor to Prince Bismarck, the latter threw aside his cloak and stood "attention" in the rain. It was then seen that he wore the broad yellow ribbon of the Order of the Black Eagle.

When the emperor called for cheers for Prince Bismarck at the conclusion of the ceremonies, it was responded to unanimously by the troops and people.

The imperial train started from here on its return to Berlin at 3:17 p. m. At the last moment Prince Bismarck appeared on the platform in order to take final leave of the emperor, and cheers were raised and continued long after the prince re-entered the castle.

Three on the List.

BUFFALO, March 27.—Seven years ago this spring Hattie Penseyres was convicted of murdering her husband. When the verdict was delivered, Mrs. Penseyres rose in the courtroom and cursed the jury. Since then two of the jury which convicted the woman have gone insane, and yesterday, a third, John Koehler, a sewing machine agent, went violently insane.

Back to Work.

PROVIDENCE, March 27.—Strikers at the American Screw company's works were yesterday granted a restoration of the wage list in force before the trouble thereupon. Some of the strikers returned to work.

Blixt's Turn Next.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 27. — The case against Claus A. Blixt for the murder of Catherine Ging was called in the district court yesterday and reset for May 14.

Two Fever-Stricken Towns.

AMESBURY, Mass., March 27.—An epidemic of scarlet fever is prevailing at Salisbury and Seabrooke, adjacent towns.

Purifying the Stage.

ALBANY, March 27.—A bill was introduced in the senate yesterday prohibiting any woman from appearing in tights or in any indecent costume at any place where male persons are assembled. The posting of bills with indecent pictures is prohibited, as is also the publication of so-called high art pictures in publications. Heavy penalties are provided.

INEBRIETY OF VARIOUS KINDS AND ITS EFFECTS.

In the usual acceptation of the term intoxication, or drunkenness, or inebriety—for they all mean practically the same thing—is referred to the excessive use of alcoholic beverages in one form or another. Norman Kerr, the highest English authority on the subject, has pointed out, however, that there are a great many things besides alcohol which produce intoxication, and that alcoholic inebriety is not so dangerous or deleterious in its effects as some other kinds of intoxication.

Dr. Kerr enumerates among the things that "make drunk come," as the Indian expresses it, ether, cocaine, eau de cologne, iodine, opium, hasheesh, paraffin, kerosene and even such seemingly innocuous substances as cod liver oil and castor oil. It would seem almost incredible that there could be such a thing as kerosene inebriety or cod liver oil intoxication, but the records of scientific research, as set forth by Dr. Kerr, are not to be disputed.

The fact seems to be that overindulgence in any one of the numerous substances of a certain class begets a cumulative appetite, and that this is accompanied in time by functional derangement, and, worse still, by a slackening and weakening of moral fiber. Tea, coffee and tobacco, while less injurious to most people than alcohol or opium or other, serve to illustrate the familiar saying that the appetite grows by what it feeds on. The tobacco habit, the coffee habit, the tea habit, may grow on one until what was once a want becomes an actual need, and each is as necessary to the comfort if not the health of the devotee as food itself, remarks the San Francisco Chronicle.

Vitality of the Brain and Heart.

There are two parts of the human organism, Dr. Balfour tells us, which if wisely used "largely escape senile failure." These two are the brain and the heart. Persons who think have often wondered why brain workers, great statesmen and others, should continue to work with almost unimpaired mental activity and energy up to a period when most of the organs and functions of the body are in a condition of advanced senile decay. There is a physiological reason for this, and Dr. Balfour tells us what it is. The normal brain, he affirms, "remains vigorous to the last, and that "because its nutrition is especially provided for." Who is there among those who have reached or passed middle age that will not be rejoiced to find such admirable physiological warrant for the belief that the brain may continue to work and even to improve almost to the very last hour of life? As in the case of the brain, there seems to be excellent physiological warrant for the conclusion that the aged heart succeeds to, at any rate, a relative increase of strength as time goes on.

Damp Linen.

Hall's Journal of Health affirms that damp linen is sufficient to account for frequent colds, consumption and premature death of a whole family, and where the mischief, not having taken that direction, is developed in the form of a rheumatism, which, once set in from that cause, is generally incurable. All body linen shortly before putting on should be made dry by a good fire. Whenever that is impossible, it is a good plan to put the linen between the blankets of your bed all night in a position to get plenty of heat. Those who have experienced no signal evidence of the mischief of damp linen are apt to be careless on the subject, but the carelessness will inevitably entail its punishment, which is likely to accumulate insidiously until it is too late.

A Sure Cure For Snoring.

Six drops of olive oil to a pinch of mustard taken just before getting into bed. The function of the oil is that of a lubricant to the larynx, while the mustard acts as a counter irritant. The cure was discovered by the late Dr. O'Dowd of Kilkenny and has proved so effectual that no native of that county ever snores, at least so says the Philadelphia Times.

THE MODEL HOSTESS.

With Imperturbable Calm and Ready Tact She Makes Everything a Success.

A woman may possess wealth untold. She may have the kindest of hearts and the brightest of minds, but unless she has absolute control of her feelings there will be some time in her career as hostess that she will display annoyance or flurry, and the contagion spreading to her guests will cause an otherwise successful entertainment to die out in undisguised failure.

A model hostess must to all appearances be made of stone so far as disagreeable happenings are concerned. Even though a guest or careless waiter inadvertently breaks a bit of china which can never be replaced, she must smile on as though the loss of the entire set would but emphasize the pleasure of the evening. Her well bred calm inspires her guests with a feeling of confidence, and, though in her heart she may be very dubious about certain important details of her dinner or dance, if she does not show her anxiety everything will pass off to a happy conclusion.

A flurried hostess or nervous host, whose countenance but ill conceals the worry felt, can do more toward making the guests uncomfortable than if the soup were served stone cold and the salad dressing were ruined by a too bountiful quantity of vinegar. An imperturbable calm and a ready tact are the two important factors in the making of a model hostess. Secure these by hook or crook, and you need never fear for the success of any of your entertainments, remarks an exchange.

Napkin Etiquette.

There is a great deal of uncertainty as to whether it is or is not the thing to fold the napkin after a formal meal. If one is staying in the house and knows that napkin rings are in use, it seems a reflection upon that custom to fling the napkin down in an untidy heap. An elegantly appointed table deserves better treatment even at the end of a meal, than those disheveled piles of drapery. Therefore it always seems fittest to simply half fold the napkin and not attract attention to it either by one obtrusive habit or the other.

The Tie Usually Disappears Also.

"I wonder who started that slang about getting it in the neck!" asked the curious boarder.

"Some man whose wife bought him a necktie at a bargain sale likely," said the cheerful idiot, and then the conversation languished while the pie disappeared.—Indianapolis Journal.

THURSTON TO GO

Notifies State Department of His Intention.

HE KNOWS NOTHING OF A RECALL.

Will Result in Trouble With Little Hawaii.

WASHINGTON, March 27. — Minister Thurston, in regard to his intended departure for Honolulu, yesterday sent a formal notification of the fact to the state department, naming Frank Hastings, secretary of the legation, as charge d'affaires during his absence. This is in the regular order of diplomatic procedure under the circumstances. Mr. Thurston said that he had heard nothing regarding his recall, if one is desired.

The departure of Mr. Thurston from the United States without being recalled by his government will leave the relations between this government and Hawaii in a peculiar condition. It cannot be said that there is a rupture of diplomatic relations, but they will certainly be severely strained.

It is customary in ordinary cases where a minister leaves the United States permanently for him to present his letters of recall to the president and take his leave. But, as Mr. Thurston has not been recalled, he cannot do this.

A Parallel Case.

But in the celebrated Catacazy case, in which the Russian government had been requested to recall its objectionable minister, and the latter, before his government had passed upon the request, notified the department of state that he proposed to leave the United States on leave of absence.

Secretary Fish strongly objected and insisted that the United States would accept nothing less than the minister's recall. In the end Mr. Catacazy did leave the United States without being recalled, just as Mr. Thurston is about to do, turning over the business to a charge d'affaires, and our government accepted the situation and expressed itself as satisfied.

It was a long time before another minister came from Russia to Washington, and the similarity in the other features of the two incidents leads to the supposition that the parallel may be carried farther, and that Mr. Hastings, the Hawaiian charge d'affaires, may be left here in that position for many months.

From a diplomatic point of view this cannot be regarded as a complete rupture of relations, but such a situation, similar again to that in which the Italian legation was left by the withdrawal of Baron Fava four years ago, is generally regarded as unsatisfactory and as calculated to make Mr. Willis' position as United States minister at Honolulu untenable.

IN FIGHTING MOOD

Manitoba Solons on the School Question.

GREENWAY MEN BLAME THE CATHOLIC CLERGY

For Forcing the Matter to An Issue.

WINNIPEG, March 27.—The first step in the renewed fight over the parochial schools in Manitoba began in the legislature yesterday afternoon, when the full message was presented from the Dominion government at Ottawa, ordering the Manitoba legislature to give the Catholics their rights as they existed before the abolition of the parochial schools in 1890.

The reading of the Ottawa message occupied over an hour, and all verbiage removed, it amounts to the request as above stated. Mr. Martin, a French Catholic member of the legislature, urged that the government should take immediate action, but Premier Greenway protested, saying that the message should be printed in order that all members might know what they were dealing with. Here the matter rested.

Meanwhile the situation grows more complicated. The Catholics and their friends say that Greenway and his followers—if they reject the order from Ottawa—are rejecting a document ordered and signed by the queen, and such an act would be equivalent to open rebellion.

They say they cannot conceive how the Dominion government could do otherwise than make the formal request they have made, as they are bound to take immediate action upon the decision of the highest court, and see that the grievances of her majesty's subjects of the Roman Catholic faith in Manitoba received redress at the earliest possible moment.

The Greenway Side.

The Greenway government contends, on the other hand, that the present school law is satisfactory to many Catholics if it were not for the agitation by the priests of the church. They say that if Manitoba is coerced into recreating a dual system, dualism, both in language and education, will be extended to the territories as well, and thus there would be perpetuated in the west the evils which have caused dissatisfaction and stagnation in the province.

Among the members of the government side it seems to be a matter of opinion that the remedial order will be disposed of during the coming week and without any great amount of speaking. Premier Greenway, speaking on the matter, said the length of the discussion would depend upon the number of individual members who wanted to talk. Premier Greenway denies that he will compromise the matter by introducing a bill making the schools entirely secular.

Officials Are Worried.

A dispatch from Ottawa states that the news that Premier Greenway has declared that "the governor general's order will be rejected in its entirety" (meaning the order to grant remedial legislation to the Catholics in matters of separate schools), while not unexpected, has created great excitement in official circles. It is admitted that the situation is pregnant with critical possibilities, and that much depends upon the action of the Dominion government.

It is, of course, possible that the Manitoba legislature may shelve the question for a year, in which event the present Dominion government would be relieved of the necessity of action for that length of time, and the federal parliament has no jurisdiction till the government of the province acts, or refuses to act, on the remedial order. But this seems hardly likely to happen, judging from the reports of the feeling among the majority of the people of Manitoba.

Five Years In Prison.

BOSTON, March 27.—Judge Nelson sentenced Major John McDonough, formerly assistant superintendent of the delivery department of the Boston postoffice, to five years in the state prison, for the embezzlement of a letter on Feb. 2 last. He was prominent in Grand Army circles. He is 56 years of age.

TRUE TO HER FAITH.

Massachusetts Will Uphold the Principles For Which She Fought.

BOSTON, March 27.—The Republican members of the legislature held a banquet at the American House last evening. The first speaker was Governor Greenhalge. After earnestly exhorting the legislators to be mindful of the responsibility and the dignity of their office, he adverted to the recent Teamoh incident.

"Massachusetts has great work to perform," he said. "She has more than ordinary responsibility committed to her. You remember the great obligation you took upon yourselves when you swore to support the constitution and laud of the state, to bear faith and allegiance to the constitution of your state and of the constitution of the United States. The constitution of the United States comprehends among its principles the 13th, 14th and 15th amendments.

"Massachusetts ratified with a full heart and with clear purpose these amendments. The people are not going to have them clouded or wiped out today. And when Massachusetts sends representatives beyond her borders, she asks not for social amenities; she has no concern with social prejudices; she simply says, in the broad principles of the United States: 'We send out our representatives, and while not asking anything of either state or individual, we require the spirit of the constitution shall glow and live from the gulf to Canada, from east to west.'

"The commonwealth has no concern with the unofficial utterances of any official, particularly if they come in an ex post facto way; but I say Massachusetts will never ask more than the spirit of her institutions, or the spirit of that great charter which we call the constitution of the United States, demands. Massachusetts will accept no less."

Great Fire Raging.

MILWAUKEE, March 27.—Fire broke out in the building occupied by the A. F. Transfer Furniture company and Landauer & Co., dry goods. Soon the wall fell with a big crash. The clothing house of Barling & Whitbold also caught fire and was destroyed. The flames jumped across Grand avenue and set a row of wooden tenement houses on fire. The firemen and policemen with difficulty saved the occupants. The heat was so intense that the building of the Young Men's Christian association on the other side of Fourth street caught fire, as did the library building. The dry goods house of James Morgan & Co., corner of Third street and Grand avenue, was damaged by water. The total loss will be $1,000,000.

Not Ready to Strike.

PROVIDENCE, March 27.—The weavers of the Providence and the National worsted mills yesterday discussed their grievances. No action was taken, however, as it was deemed advisable to await the action of the district council of the Textile Workers' association. At the Campbell mills the dissatisfied weavers asked for an advance of 3 mills a shuttle extra on all over four, and the demand was granted and the weavers will not strike.

BOSTON, March 27.—A boy employed at a market, while driving through Pine street yesterday, saw a queer looking bundle on the sidewalk. He picked up the mysterious package and took it to station 4, where the bundle was opened and found to contain two infants. The infants had been born only a few hours and were stillbirths.

About the time snow began falling last November, we made contracts with the best waist manufacturers in this country, and the orders were big enough to make an impression in the market; the result—more waists came here within a few weeks than ever came to one house in Lowell.

Come today if you can, and see the biggest display of Shirt waists ever shown in this city.

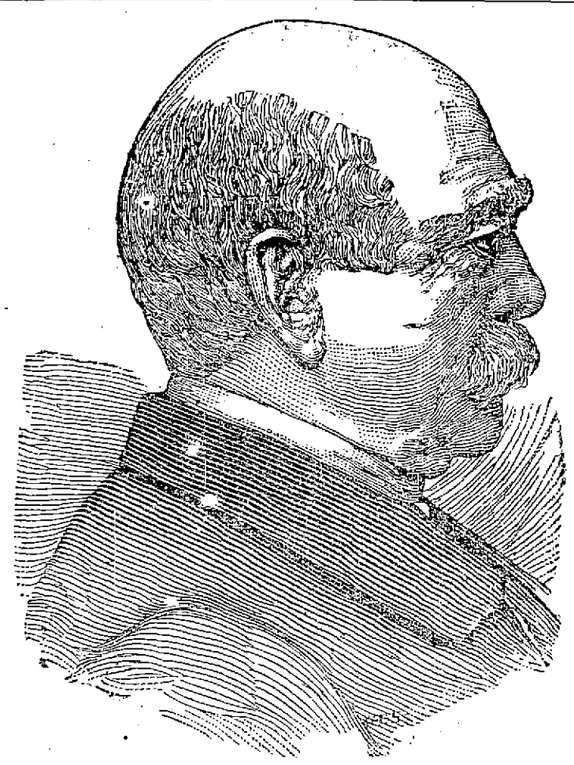

You know that there's a difference in shirt waists. It has grown to be a big business and lots of people have started cutting cloth into what they think are waists, when really it requires years of experience to make waists right. A laundered waist, poorly made, is one of the meanest articles of clothing.
